1,800 PLANES ON ALERT

Air Defences Tested In Far-Flung Exercise

By The Canadian Press

Canada and the United States today open the biggest peacetime test of North American air defences in a 12-hour mock raid by hundreds of bombers making 6,000 sorties against strategic bomber bases and key industrial centres in the two countries.

Simulating a surprise nuclear strike, the attackers, assisted by about a dozen British bombers, will sweep down from the north over Canadian skies and from the east and west coasts in attempts to penetrate radar screens and interceptor defences.

On the alert will be about 1,800 interceptor planes, including nine Canadian jet squadrons. (One of these, 409 Squadron, is based at Comox on Vancouver Island. A spokesman said today the base was in a position to take its part in "any commitments" set out in the exercise. The squadron flies CF-100 aircraft.)

Also alerted are about 250 American missile bases involving, all told, about 250,000 army, navy and air force personnel. The exercise, called Operation Sky Shield II, has gained significance in the light of the tense Berlin situation. Its importance also is increased by statements of U.S. air experts that Russia is flying at least one type of new supersonic bomber and one new long-range interceptor that may be superior to their U.S. counterparts. These new Soviet aircraft, flying at more than twice the speed of sound, were unveiled at the Moscow Air Show in July.

Attempt to Sneak by Northern Radar

Not a shot is to be fired in the 12-hour exercise which opened at 9 a.m. PST. The American "attacking" B-47 and B-52 bombers took off early in the day from their regular bases and then attempted to manoeuvre on the outskirts of the northern radar networks, plotting sneak attacks.

Once the attackers' whereabouts are detected by radar screens of such installations as the DEW, Mid-Canada and Pinetree lines, reports were to be flashed automatically to the North American Air Defence Command headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo. Defence and flight orders will flow out to interceptor and missile bases almost as quickly as warnings are flashed in.

Katanga Independence Secured by Tshombe

Cease-Fire Pact Signed With UN

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters) — A cease-fire agreement between the United Nations and Katanga was signed here Friday night, it was announced today.

The agreement was described as an extension of the provisional pact signed last month.

The effect of the agreement was to bring the two sides back to the political and military positions they occupied before last month's clash over UN efforts to remove white mercenaries from the Katanga armed forces.

The agreement, reached after 23 days of hard bargaining by President Moise Tshombe of Katanga and Mahmoud Khari of Tunisia, chief of the UN's civil operations in the Congo, takes effect immediately and needs only approval by the UN secretary in New York.

After the signing of the agreement, Tshombe emerged smiling onto the balcony of the presidential palace, but Khari looked grim after the final, day-long bargaining session.

The agreement clearly states that the UN recognizes the right of Katanga to defend itself against outside attack, which was taken to mean an attempt by the Congo's central government in Leopoldville to bring Katanga under its control.

UN TROOPS REMAIN However, Tshombe failed to press home his much stated demands that the UN troops who have been in the secessionist province for 15 months be withdrawn.

Khari is expected to go to Leopoldville soon, presumably to make further contacts in a bid to bring about a reconciliation between Katanga and the central government.

The central government said in Leopoldville Friday night that it would not feel bound by the Katanga cease-fire agreement.

Under the cease-fire agreement all prisoners will be returned, without their arms or munitions.

The 190 Irish UN prisoners who were reported to have been transferred to Kolwezi from Jadotville—where they had been held since their capture more than three weeks ago—will probably be brought here.

A mixed military commission will be set up to supervise the terms of the agreement.

Points in Elisabethville occupied by the United Nations will be neutralized and no armed forces will be allowed into the area.

Cold War To Last A Century

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan today described Russia as the world's "greatest imperialist country" and predicted the cold war would last a generation and perhaps longer.

Macmillan told the windup session of the annual Conservative party conference that peaceful coexistence between East and West could come only if Communist nations recover a "moral basis" for their existence.

Macmillan said Russia was "the greatest imperialist country in the world and is using all the old arts and ambitions of Czarist Russia." All the same I still hope that the Russians may, in their own interests, be willing to accept something in the nature of a détente. . . . Berlin may provide the first real test."

Gypsy State Proposed

PARIS (Reuters) — Gypsy "King" Valda Voivod III Friday announced plans to found a Gypsy state called Romanestan for his 9,000,000 subjects on virgin territory allotted by the United Nations.

He told a press conference here that a draft international statute for the Gypsies will be submitted to the UN asking for juridical and social protection for Gypsies throughout the world and provision of land for them to establish Romanestan.

He proposed an island in the Atlantic or Pacific as a site for a Gypsy state and said it would be modelled on Israel to show that the Gypsies were capable of developing virgin or barren soil.

The subject will be discussed at a world Gypsy congress due to be held in Paris next month.

LEADERSHIP RACE

Hot Campaign Reaches Peak

By FRANK RUTTER

The campaign for Liberal Party presidency reached a climax here today with a no-holds-barred, fired-up barrage of speeches.

WIRE BRIEFS

Abdication Denied

ROME (AP)—A spokesman for Crown Prince Salf al Islam Badr of Yemen said today reports that the imam of the Red Sea kingdom had abdicated in favor of his son were due to a misunderstanding.

General business paused beside the free apples, roses, banners, breakfasts and hospitality served up by the candidates.

It was not expected that a clear majority would emerge in the first ballot, being held at press time, and a second one would be taken later this afternoon.

Result of the first ballot was to be disclosed at 2 p.m., and delegates meanwhile went to lunch and met with national Liberal leader L. B. Pearson.

'MA' MURRAY HIT Hit of the pre-vote nomination speakers this morning was Margaret 'Ma' Murray, 73-year-old newspaperwoman from Lillooet, who pulled out all the stops in a grandstand style for Mr. Martin. She made an impassioned plea for the Liberal Party to re-awaken and save its national identity.

"Hugh Martin is a builder and God knows if ever the Liberal Party in B.C. needs building it needs it now," she told cheering delegates.

NO PARTY She said there had been in effect no Liberal Party for seven years since collapse of the Coalition government.

Oil Seepage Endangers Shipping

QUEBEC (CP)—A state of emergency was declared in the port of Quebec today as oil and benzene from the cargo of a grounded tanker seeped into the St. Lawrence River.

Crewmen aboard vessels in port were ordered ashore as a precaution and the smell of oil was carried from the river into upper town.

All shipping between St. Nicholas, eight miles upstream, and the eastern tip of the Island of Orleans, 15 miles downstream, was stopped. Ferry service between Quebec and Levis also was halted.

Later, although the state of emergency remained in force, the two ferry boats were allowed to resume their crossings.

It was hoped that the ship would be refloated at tonight's high tide.

Officials feared a single spark could set off a gigantic blaze. The grounded freighter is the Vibex, 11,400 tons, a British vessel under charter to the Shell Oil Company. She was carrying some 9,000,000 gallons of benzene and oil.

RWANGASORE Urundi leader

African Premier Assassinated

USUMBURA, Ruanda-Urundi (Reuters)—Louis Rwangasore, prime minister of the African kingdom of Urundi, was assassinated by an unidentified gunman here Friday night.

The prime minister was dining with cabinet ministers at a lakeside restaurant when he was struck in the chest by a rifle bullet fired from some nearby bushes.

Urundi and its neighboring territory Ruanda are bordered by Kivu province of the former Belgian Congo and are both Belgian trusteeships due to become independent next year.

Rwangasore, 30, was the leader of the Union and Progress National Party that won a sweeping victory in the first Urundi elections last month.

As eldest son of the Urundi monarch, the Mwami Mambusta, Rwangasore was crown prince, but he was not heir-apparent.

Urundi has been calm for some time, despite sporadic clashes between rival tribes in neighboring Ruanda.

The mwami (king) has been ruling since 1915 and the monarchy is strongly entrenched in Urundi.

The king of Ruanda is living in exile and the electorate there recently voted overwhelmingly against his return.

Ruanda and Urundi, with a joint population of 4,500,000, comprise three chief tribes—the giant, seven-foot-tall Watutsi warriors, the traditional rulers; Batwa pygmies who are Watutsi followers, and Bahutus, members of the Bantu tribe.

Gagliardi Remarks 'Made in Private'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Gagliardi has denied making a public statement that he is considering leaving politics because police are hounding him.

The radio station that carried a broadcast purporting to be a tape-recorded telephone interview with the minister said today that Mr. Gagliardi made the statement privately.

Manager Bill Hughes of New Westminster radio station CKNW said today the reporter who broadcast the tape has been dismissed for breaking a confidence. He said the conversation with the minister was a private one and should not have been broadcast.

The highways minister, vacationing in Tokyo, was asked about the report in a long-distance telephone call. He told the Vancouver Province: "I never made a public statement to radio station CKNW concerning resigning from the provincial government. A statement of that kind would be made to only one man—the premier."

The newspaper says Mr. Gagliardi refused to amplify this statement and would not discuss what he meant by the word "public."

Mr. Gagliardi, facing a careless driving charge in Kamloops, his sixth traffic offence in five years, was quoted in the broadcast as saying he was considering leaving politics because the RCMP "just won't let me alone." He was quoted as saying his decision depended on what happened in the Kamloops traffic case.

End of 1961 Fire Season Forecast for Next Week

Termination of the 1961 fire season in B.C. is forecast for early next week.

B.C. Forest Service weekly report issued today said a review of the situation would be made Monday, but in view of the generally low or non-existent fire hazard throughout the province it was expected the season would be ended.

GAGLARDI

Comments were made in a conversation Oct. 5. The tape was broadcast Thursday just after Mr. Gagliardi's departure for the Orient.

In the taped broadcast, Mr. Gagliardi said:
"I'm thinking very seriously of going to the premier and saying, 'They can keep this lousy job.'"

"They (police) will never leave me alone... they'll ride me until they kill me."
"You know what I'm thinking very seriously of doing? Bunching it... yep, bunching it. I'm thinking very seriously of going to the premier and saying they can keep this lousy job because they will never leave me alone."

"There's no way of me getting out of this thing... These fellows will ride me and ride me and ride me until they kill me. They constantly bother my family... I'm just fed up with it."

"In the last election, just to show you how mean these guys are, my son came up from Texas—he was there."

the Liberal Party psychanalysed."

While the election was underway a cavalcade of cars headed for Swartz Bay to escort Mr. Pearson into town. Mr. Pearson speaks tonight at the convention windup banquet at the Empress Hotel.

Backers of the other two candidates for the presidency didn't pull their punches either.

Lawyer-MLA Alan Macfarlane nominated Mr. Taggart.

"This is not a Madison Avenue type of job," he said. "It needs a responsible man with experience, courage and ability."

He said there had been allegations that Mr. Taggart represented "The Old Guard".

"Thank God for the Old Guard—it brought all these people here today," said Mr. Macfarlane.

The biggest applause went to Mr. Gilmour and his backers.

His nominator, Hugh McGivern of New Westminster, made a reasoned plea for responsibility in the party executive. But he too had some barbs.

"The health of the Liberal Party does not lie in dollars and cents," he warned delegates.

'Cooling Off' Session Cures Convention Row

By FRANK BUTTER

The Liberal convention here caught a touch of "indigestion" Friday night as after-dinner delegates rebelled against their chairman.

It was a billious moment which turned to a chortle after a 30-second adjournment restored good humor.

It all started when convention chairman Allan Cox announced at the 8 p.m. session that resolutions concerning the party constitution would be discussed.

He ruled out of order a bid to sidestep the constitution and go on to brighter things.

His ruling was challenged from the floor but a vote upheld him.

Then Point Grey delegate Grant Deachman said he didn't think there were enough delegates in the Crystal Ballroom to form the constitutional quorum of 250.

The major resolution under discussion was a big reorganizational move defining three-party levels—executive, committee of officers and riding locals, which would have been beefed up with new organizers on the spot.

In the end the resolution was tossed back for further committee study anyway.

The quorum was there, Mr. Cox ruled. He decided proxies held by delegates actually there counted as votes. Then he changed his mind.

So he ran a head count, but first ordered the doors closed so there wouldn't be a rush of new faces. Then he decided to allow those waiting outside to come in anyway.

The count was 178 and Mr. Cox called on the meeting to adjourn.

But there was such a strong protest from delegates who complained "this was not doing the Liberal party any good" that Mr. Cox called a 30-second cool-off recess, after which business would go ahead quorum count or not.

Delegates then wanted to continue debate on resolutions, but the resolutions chairman couldn't be found. His committee was meeting to map today's strategy. Finally Don Lanskill, the chairman, arrived to take over, and agreed some resolutions could be discarded.

"I have now left the chair, thank God," said Mr. Cox.

"I feel like the new coach of the B.C. Lions' football team," said Mr. Lanskill.

Reds Trying To Wreck UN, Adlai Charges

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States says Russia appears to be threatening to wreck the United Nations unless the world organization bows to its demands on revamping the UN secretariat.

Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, made the accusations in replying Friday to Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin's contention that "if the path of non-agreed decisions is taken, this will cause the organization to collapse."

Stevenson, commenting on the statements made by Zorin at a press conference, said: "I wish Mr. Zorin would not threaten the United Nations with disaster if he does not have his own way."

The U.S. delegate declared that in negotiations to find a temporary successor to the late Dag Hammarskjöld as UN secretary-general the United States would "resist the content of the troika or the ideological division of the world into three blocs."

Zorin complained in his 2½-hour talks with reporters that the UN secretariat has been taken over by one-man rule. He mentioned no names but made it clear that his reference was aimed at Hammarskjöld's American deputy, Andrew W. Cordier.

"The man is acting by right of seizure of power without asking anybody," Zorin said. "He runs the secretariat in the interest of the organization as a whole and by no means in a neutral fashion."

A secretariat spokesman denied that any of the UN high command's 29 undersecretaries had assumed any added authority following Hammarskjöld's death Sept. 18 in an African plane crash.

"There has been no change whatsoever in the responsibilities of each of the undersecretaries," the spokesman said. "The only modification in procedure has been a greatly increased consultation among the undersecretaries on matters of general interest. Meetings of undersecretaries have been held without a chairman and a vast amount of daily consultation takes place," he added.

Cordier, a veteran of UN service, declined to comment. Zorin reiterated the Soviet Union's willingness to agree to a temporary secretary-general whom he said should pick at least three and up to seven undersecretaries of specified nationalities.

The new secretariat chief, he said, should agree beforehand to consult with them and seek their mutual agreement on all major issues. At the same time he denied that the temporary secretary-general would be subject to veto by his staff.

Mr. Justice Brown dismissed the jury Thursday afternoon while the court considered whether certain police evidence was admissible.

Ruling that this evidence was not admissible, Mr. Justice Brown said: "You were told by the Crown prosecutor (William R. McIntyre) that the evidence in this case was all circumstantial. That is quite satisfactory if it weaves a net about the accused."

"Rejection of this other evidence has left the prosecution with suspicion only, and conviction on suspicion is impossible."

Next trial will open Monday at 11 a.m., when former Victorian John Blair faces judge and jury on a charge of fraud, involving a real estate deal.

Conservatives Practising 'The Big Lie'

Federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming and the Conservative government are practising "the big lie" that Canada's economy is growing, Liberal Senator John J. Connolly charged here Friday.

Sen. Connolly, who is also president of the National Liberal Federation, addressed a luncheon at the B.C. party convention in the Empress Hotel. "I indict the government for its trade policy, for its failure to appreciate trading developments in our time and, as a result, for creating a crisis for Canadian trade," he said.

HARD FACTS
Mr. Connolly said that the hard facts are that Canada's economy is slowing up.

Mr. Fleming and his colleagues "have failed to appreciate the real problems in the real world."

Mr. Fleming has frittered a $250,000,000 surplus in 1957 to a deficit totalling $2,000,000,000 this year.

"When these ministers talk about fiscal and economic progress in Canada under their regime, I ask you who is practising the big lie?"

ON OUTSIDE
They have failed to appreciate Europe's rising standards of living and that it represents a market bigger than that of America. Canada will soon "be on the outside looking in."

Mr. Connolly heartily endorsed the Common Market and called for a similar free trade movement in the Atlantic community.

"These men (Ottawa's cabinet) are not worthy to be leaders of Canadian life. What we need is people imbued with the idea of making these arrangements as a matter of necessity."

Boat in 'Poor Shape'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A marine surveyor has found Vancouver's police patrol boat in poor shape and she can't be operated in winds of more than 10 miles an hour, Police Chief George Archer reported to police commissioners.

Increased wages and benefits won Friday by 400 members of St. Joseph's Hospital Employees' Association will add some $25,000 a year to the hospital budget.

Hospital directors finally approved a conciliation board recommendation that 4 per cent be granted across the board on wages. Cash for 50 per cent of accumulated sick leave, up to 26 weeks, will be paid employees leaving the hospital, provided they were employed June 30 of this year, and had 10 years' service.

Agreement ends 10 months of bargaining and conciliation between the hospital and the association.

CANADA ENVOY BEATEN UP IN CAIRO

CAIRO (AP)—Group Capt. W. C. Langstaff, Canadian military attaché in Cairo, and his Indian counterpart were beaten up by a group of Egyptians shortly after the Syrian revolt broke out last Sept. 28, it was disclosed Friday night.

Langstaff was badly beaten about the face, but in Ottawa an external affairs department official said he was not in serious condition.

The Canadian and Indian embassies here would not comment beyond confirming that the incident had taken place and that both countries had protested to Egyptian authorities. It was understood Egyptian officials had extended regrets and promised an investigation into the beatings.

Judge Orders Evidence Rejected

Circumstantial evidence of breaking and entering a drug store at Sidney, April 21, was rejected in B.C. Assize Court here Friday.

A 12-man jury acquitted Ronald Dale Haas of the charge after Mr. Justice T. W. Brown had told them:

"Conviction on suspicion is impossible."

Mr. Justice Brown dismissed the jury Thursday afternoon while the court considered whether certain police evidence was admissible.

Ruling that this evidence was not admissible, Mr. Justice Brown said: "You were told by the Crown prosecutor (William R. McIntyre) that the evidence in this case was all circumstantial. That is quite satisfactory if it weaves a net about the accused."

"Rejection of this other evidence has left the prosecution with suspicion only, and conviction on suspicion is impossible."

Atrocity Charges Denied by French

GENEVA (Reuters)—An international inquiry committee Friday charged that French paratroops had executed young unarmed civilian prisoners and deliberately mutilated bodies during fighting with Tunisians at Bizerte last July.

The three-man committee of the International Commission of Jurists declared the tough "paras" were guilty of other violations of the Geneva conventions on the rules of war.

NO SOCIAL SECURITY YET

He's 16 Years Younger

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Floyd Barfield Morris, gardener and handyman, has suddenly found himself 16 years younger. He thought he was 77. He felt like it too when he stooped to plant roses or prune shrubs. He and his wife decided it was time to apply for Social Security. He had no birth record and the Social Security administration wanted some type of proof about his birth date.

Mrs. Morris wrote to President Kennedy. The letter went to the census bureau.

Its personal service branch started looking for Morris in its records. He was listed in the 1910 census but not in 1900, indicating he was between 51 and 61. His military record was then found. It listed his birth date as April 6, 1900, five days after the census was taken. Morris won't be eligible for Social Security until next April when he reaches his 62nd birthday but he's happy the government has made him 16 years younger.

'CHRONIC' PROGRAM CONDEMNED

Delegates Back Demand For Welfare Commission

(See also page 20)

A Royal commission on B.C. social welfare services, cheaper drugs and a condemnation of the chronic care program were among policy resolutions approved by the B.C. Liberal convention here Friday.

The convention also endorsed the plan for a national medical health scheme drawn up at an Ottawa Liberal rally in January.

The state of provincial welfare services has led to wide spread concern said one resolution.

Staff turnover is alarmingly high, and the government has never investigated or answered the charges of former child welfare superintendent Ruby McKay, whose resignation created a furore across the province last year, it said.

Council Re-Activates Parking Commission

City council re-activated its advisory parking commission at the request of Mayor Percy Scurrell, who said he was the target of rearing smear campaign.

The independent commission, made up of businessmen, will survey available sites for the proposed View Street and Bastion Square area civic parking garages and recommend which specific properties should be purchased.

This would wipe out any suggestion of City Hall influence in selecting the site, Mayor Scurrell said, and would "quash" the smear campaign against him.

Miss McKay accused the Social Credit government of callous disregard of the need for better welfare services.

The Liberals urged a royal commission to make a thorough study of all phases of the welfare department's administration.

CYNICAL TREATMENT

Another resolution condemned "the cynical treatment of the chronically ill by the present government." It demanded action on Social Credit promises before the last election to implement an adequate program and build new institutions.

It also condemned the government for taking hefty federal hospital grants and not using them to increase services.

The drug resolution said prices could be cut as much as 40 per cent.

It called for a curb on competition in the drug industry by stricter controls through the federal health department and by encouraging doctors and the medical profession to make out prescriptions using the proper names of drugs, not trade names.

LIBERAL FUND SCHEME TO FEED GRASS ROOTS

Liberals launched a new fund-raising campaign at their B.C. convention here Friday.

Called the "Liberal Assurance Plan" it seeks pledged contributions on a monthly basis.

Donors are being asked to sign up for a year's contribution of $1 a month or a lump sum of $10.

The money will be split 25 per cent to headquarters and 75 per cent to local ridings.

A bid to change this to a 50-50 split was defeated after convention organizer Allan Cox of Oak Bay said the whole aim of the party was to revitalize grass roots, and the local people were the ones who desperately need money.

Second Thoughts in Business

IN DEMANDING THAT BRITAIN remain outside the European Common Market, the Diefenbaker government expected to have the general support of Canadian business. For business, the government says, will be gravely injured by the reduction or loss of Canada's tariff preferences in the British market if Europe is economically united.

Canadian business apparently sees beyond the short-run losses feared by the government and recognizes the chance of long-run gains under the British policy now unfolding. Some of the most important leaders of industry realize that Canada cannot cozen or bully Britain out of the Common Market and would be foolish to try.

Thus Mr. F. D. Mathers, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, warns Canada against adopting a "dog-in-the-manger" attitude toward Britain's entry into the Common Market.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce at its Halifax meeting a few days ago urged the government and business generally to re-examine Canada's whole trading position in the light of the present British policy. What is needed, the Chamber of Commerce believes, is a "positive" approach to the problems thus created whereas the government's approach has been purely negative, an attempt to obstruct British policy.

Mr. N. R. Crump, president of the C.P.R., says that Canada's short-term trading prospects will not be helped if Britain joins the Common Market but the resulting prosperity of a unified Europe will stimulate Canadian exports in the long run instead of depressing them.

The Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, representing Canada's largest single industry, has warned the government that it cannot hope to prevent the union of the two European trade blocs but should try instead to secure for Canada the best possible terms of entry into the new continental economy. By mere obstruction, the pulp and paper industry fears, Canada will damage its bargaining power.

Long an advocate of tariff protection, The Financial Post, leading Canadian newspaper of business, has been fully converted to the British policy. "The long-run objective to which sensible people should aspire," says The Post, "is not a European Common Market bloc and a North American bloc but a common market of the whole North Atlantic trading community."

That precisely is what Mr. Pearson has been saying for more than a year while being bitterly denounced by the government almost as a saboteur of Canadian business.

Clearly Canadian business, as represented by many of its most powerful leaders, does not agree with a government which it widely supported in the elections of 1957 and 1958. Among its own friends, the government finds its obstructionist policy backfiring. And among ordinary Canadians the government's angry pressure on Britain at the recent Commonwealth conference in Accra is regarded with alarm and horror.

For the highest economic reasons the government's policy (or lack of policy) is short-sighted and is unlikely to succeed in any case. In the lowest terms of domestic politics and votes it has gravely damaged the Conservative party.

Mr. Diefenbaker is too good a politician to overlook this damage and his posture, we expect, will begin soon to change. But however the government may re-explain its attitude toward Britain, its basic hostility to any integration of the Atlantic trading community will remain. Its many speeches to Parliament leave no doubt on that score.

Change at Blackpool

PROBABLY SINCE ITS INCEPTION, delegates to the annual British Labor Party conference, usually at Blackpool, have prided themselves on setting party policy and directing the course to be followed by members of Parliament.

If that belief was ever justified, the recent meeting in Blackpool proves conclusively that it no longer stands. Last week at the Lancashire seaside resort, the convention did what Mr. Gaitskell wanted. Last year, at Scarborough, the convention told Mr. Gaitskell what to do—and it wasn't what he wanted. The leader nevertheless charted the course he had set for himself, contrary to the convention's will. He could do that because he still controlled the Labor members in Parliament.

Returning to Blackpool this year, he could even preach "a rational approach to political problems" and that meant a toning down of much Socialist dogma and doctrine. The convention, undergoing a change of heart, listened and accepted the Gaitskell line.

An old conviction that the convention called the tune and the elected members danced to it was interred at the famous North Country seaside resort.

Nothing, as Mr. Hegel once pointed out, is constant but change.

A Bow to Culture

CRITICS MAY OFFER DIFFERENT assessments of Carl Sandburg's distinction. All Americans, however, will probably agree that he is distinguished in fields of poetry, ballad-making, folk-singing and history.

To honor him, a special evening has been set October 25 at which the Kennedy cabinet will sponsor a "black-tie" cultural gathering where Mr. Sandburg will comment on current events, read from his poems, and sing a number of songs.

This is a pleasant gesture to a man held in high esteem by many of his countrymen—and a notable example of according honor to outstanding literary figures while they are still alive.

Perhaps the event might be noted by the Canadian cabinet. A similar occasion for a Canadian man of letters—if a suitable one can be found—would supplement other efforts by Canada to stimulate interest in and respect for its culture.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A HIKE into Iron Mine Bay on the East Sooke Peninsula takes you into a fascinating country.

The trail leads in off the East Sooke Road about a mile from the south end.

The stand of timbers consists of Douglas firs, western red cedars, Sitka spruce and balsam fir.

Mingled with them are red alder and giant maples which are covered with moss. Poly-pody ferns and shrubs of many kinds grow along the side of the trail.

In the draw there are sword ferns that have fronds almost five feet in length. In places you can find the deer fern with its spore-bearing fronds shooting out from the centre of the clump.

At this time of the year there are many fungi to be found, including the coral and elf cups. Every down log is a garden of lichens and mosses with the tiny seedlings of the conifers standing above them.

Along the trail there is a rock bluff ten feet high and approximately twenty feet long covered with Liverwort that hangs down like a bright green curtain. Mingled with the Liverwort there are tiny lighter green mosses that give a pleasing effect.

When you come out into the open country at the sea there is a marvelous sight before you: several small tree-covered islands, and in the background the Olympic mountains stand out against the sky.

FROM OTTAWA

Still Bitterly Opposed, But With a Softened Line

THE government is almost desperately trying to find ways of countering the public's angry reaction to the duct of Trade Minister Hees and Finance Minister Fleming at the Accra Commonwealth economic conference. It was at Accra that Mr. Hees told the British in effect that they must decide between the Common Market and the Commonwealth.

And Mr. Fleming lectured the British in a manner that aroused the ire of the hundreds of thousands of Canadian voters who have a warm spot in their hearts for the U.K. When the two ministers returned to Ottawa the whole matter of Canada's approach to Britain's proposed entry into the Common Market was examined by the cabinet on an emergency basis.

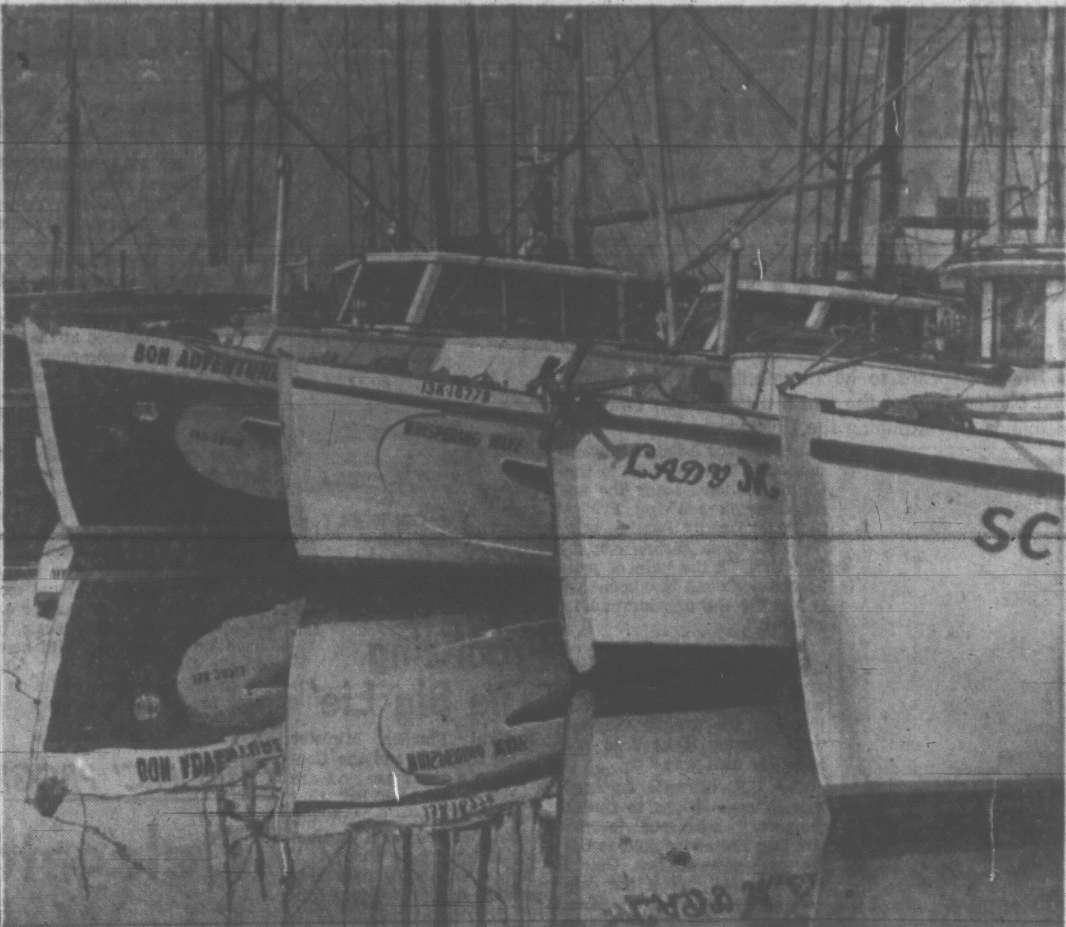

No one was surprised then to find various members of the cabinet participating in a propaganda drive designed to convince Canadians that the Conservatives are really quite good friends of the British.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton went on television to declare, with some ardor, that "the Conservatives are the Commonwealth Party."

Added His

Mr. Fleming joined in the cry in several speeches in the Toronto area. And now Mr. Hees has added his voice. He was not content to assure his audience that the Conservatives are really on the side of the U.K. Mr. Hees said that the Canadian government is examining the possibility of Canada becoming a member of a North Atlantic free trade association, in what appeared to the Conservative press at least as a major shift in government policy.

The fact is simply that there has been no change of policy. The Conservatives are still bitterly opposed to British entry into the Common Market. They will continue to fight it in private, and by implication, but they will soften their line for domestic consumption.

The latest utterances of Mr. Hees make his statements of the recent past appear ludicrous. When Liberal Leader Pearson suggested Canada take the lead in the formation of a North Atlantic free trade area, encompassing Western Europe, Canada and the U.S., the trade minister scoffed at the idea. He challenged Pearson to go out to the industrial cities of Ontario and try to sell the concept.

And now Mr. Hees, driven by the politically acute prime minister, is out pushing the same suggestion.

One has a certain amount of sympathy for the trade minister. For it is no secret in Ottawa that he is a free trader at heart. But Finance Minister Donald Fleming has laid down the policy on the Common Market, and Mr. Hees was reluctantly forced to follow along.

Thus we have the government in the position of damning British entry into the Common Market one day, and throwing out hints of getting Canada into an expanded Common Market the next day, or even on the same day.

Mr. Pearson has not taken full advantage of the golden political opportunity that was opened to him by the Accra fiasco. He did not recognize just how vulnerable were the Conservatives, and lost his chance to win over many voters who were seeking a political voice to articulate their condemnation of the government's posturing and threats against the United Kingdom.

He is still urging the positive concept of a North Atlantic free trade area, but his speeches now have to compete with dozens made by the popular Tory cabinet, hinting and suggesting they are in favor of the same concept.

Mr. Diefenbaker himself has been strangely silent on this issue. Not once has he made a major policy speech dealing with the subject, although he has been making many speeches lately on such matters as Canada's 100th birthday and bomb shelters.

WE DON'T SEE DEEP IMPLICATIONS

Able to Keep Fact and Fantasy Fairly Well Separated

I FEEL a pang of sympathy for the chief constables who have recently registered their solemn protest against the "image" of their craft or mystery which is limned in such unforgettable fashion by Mr. Al Capp. While I do not share L'il Abner's veneration for Fearless Fosdick, I am bound to admit that the law-enforcement officers portrayed as Fosdick's superiors are not such as would compel the admiration and obedience of any citizen, young or old, and it is clearly galling for loyal servants of the community to be the butt of jest and ridicule. But there are one or two small points relevant to the discussion which, I feel, the chief constables have overlooked.

In the first place, the naive of Fosdick, as established by his creator by means which reveal a brand of sardonic humor that I find particularly engaging. For example, the reaction of our blue-coated and bowler-hatted Bayard to the sight of young Officer McGraft in his flashy new sports-car: "Only 30 days on the force, and a new car already. What thrill!"

Of course, I shouldn't laugh at the implication that police officers have been known to supplement their incomes by accepting gifts in cash or kind from enemies of society, but I save my conscience with the reflection—which brings me to my second point—that graft and corruption in police circles are a historical fact.

I seem to remember charges of sundry little aberrations of this nature being levelled against leading gangsters in cities not, as they say, a million miles from here, and while I do not remember the exact details, I do recall that there was, for a time, a wave of emigration and felo-de-se which, while it proved nothing, could not but raise a question or two in the mind of the law-abiding citizen.

So I think Al Capp could plead that there has been some justification for his portraits of crooked cops, and I also think that he is entitled to point out that you can't get many laughs out of a strip cartoon that dealt only with virtuous and sincere and industrious men, women and children of the highest integrity. He gets his laughs out of his satires on the American way of life, and the satirist deals, after all, with human frailties.

It is perhaps a mistake for the police chiefs to be hyper-sensitive. The constabulary are not the only targets for Capp's satirical humor.

Presumably the members of the Senate of the United States are equally entitled to protest against the implications contained in the portrait-caricature of Senator Jack S. Phogbound, the very incarnation of self-seeking and venal careerism in political life; the airline operators, surely, are not overjoyed by the image presented to the thoughtless public by Capp through the medium of Captain Rickettyback and his remarkable aircraft; the capitalists of the world have every reason to unite in their own defence against the merciless delineation of their foibles as bodied forth in the person of General Bullmoose; and certain individuals have some cause to complain: for instance, the original of the simpering Loverboy-nik, whoever he may have been.

Nor is Capp the sole sniper, or police the only target. Schoolteachers have had a pretty rough time of it at the hands of comic-strip cartoonists. You wouldn't call Mr. Flutesnoot or Miss Grundy exactly sympathetic characters, I take it. And what about office workers? Do they enjoy being compared to such inhuman creatures as Bulgebottom and Cardley and Cringley, those degraded Yahoos dreamed up by Fagaly and Shorten?

Not the Only Ones

Policemen can take comfort from the knowledge that they are really not the only people held up to ridicule. Husbands are derided as an institution; wives are all twittering, illogical spendthrifts. Alligators are not, in real life, so arrogant and self-centred as Walt Kelly's Albert, nor are all cowbirds necessarily Communists. Professors don't all Plumble.

In any case, making fun of the police is an old-established custom in democratic countries. If Russia had produced a series of comedy "shorts" entitled "Chase Me, Cheka" at the time when the rest of the world was laughing at the Keystone Cops, there would have been no Russian Revolution, I'll warrant.

Conan Doyle was hard on the official force in his immortal tales of Sherlock and the Doctor, but he didn't succeed in entirely destroying Britain's faith in Scotland Yard. It is true that some of the police inspectors were portrayed as hard-working, obtuse men of simple faith and literal mind—and none of them was ever accused of the slightest departure from the highest possible standards of professional ethics—but Lestrade was frequently referred to by the great private detective as "that imbecile," which doesn't do the old keen-eyed bloodhound image much good.

Newspapers are not entirely guiltless. How about the paper which referred in a news story to a gentleman as "the well-known defective in the local police force" and, when he complained, corrected the description to read: "well-known detective in the local police force"?

Perhaps someone should whisper in the chief constables' ears that the average human being is able to keep fact and fantasy fairly well separated. When we laugh at something that strikes us as comical, it doesn't mean that we see any deep implications in the drollery that has made us laugh. We don't believe that all policemen are corrupt just because we know that the odd Officer McGraft does exist.

I would hazard the guess that the average community judges its policemen—and, for that matter, its lock-keepers and jurists, teachers and tax-collectors, professors and plumbers, doctors and dancers and druggists and drapers—not in the fitful light cast by the comic strip, but in the light of the collective experience of that community of the policemen, etc., acting daily in their official capacity. Admirable people, in the long run, may expect to be admired.

Canada Should Work Wherever Possible, Through Every Channel, for Freer Trade

TO the argument that Canada's foreign trade patterns are unsatisfactory and must be changed, the government has given a short and pious answer. The ponderous machinery of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, we are told, must and will be used to solve these problems. If the government of Canada really believes that, it is unique among the governments of the world. Certainly GATT, up to now, has been one of free men's most successful experiments. Under its rules of tariff-reduction and non-discrimination world trade has been vastly expanded, though not nearly enough to meet the world's growing needs.

But the spirit, and often the letter of the GATT contracts have been widely disregarded by many nations, including Canada.

For instance, while the Common Market of Europe is strictly legal under the laws of GATT, its whole intention is to violate one of their major purposes by levying one scale of tariffs among the member states and another against all outsiders.

A group of six nations has undertaken trade discrimination on a huge scale and profited abundantly as a result. The same is true of the Seven, led by Britain, but without comparable success.

Again, Canada has agreed with its GATT partners to enforce certain tariffs and has driven a coach and four through the agreement by such devices as import quotas and special taxes on foreign goods. The United States has imposed various import quotas too, and so have European nations inside and outside the Common Market.

The entire Commonwealth tariff preference system is an outright violation of GATT but was accepted by other nations simply because the Commonwealth would not abandon it.

Canada's official position—that GATT is inviolable and will continue to reduce the world's tariffs if it is left to its work—has become a rather pompous fiction. None of the European governments questioned by this newspaper's correspondents recently believes for a moment that GATT, as it stands, can possibly meet the free world's urgent need of more trade.

The best proof of that fact is the decision of the European Six and Seven to bypass the principles, though not the letter of GATT in setting up their own discriminatory trade areas. These nations cannot wait for GATT to solve their problems.

GATT is still locked in its interminable negotiations at Geneva, may produce some peripheral tariff reductions later on but clearly is not able, under its rules and the restrictive trading policies of its governments, to deal with fundamentals.

It has often been argued here, and is argued by powerful statesmen in Europe, the United States and Canada, that fundamentals can be dealt with only under a completely new concept of world trade, by a break-through into some kind of Free World Economic Community, an expansion of the European Common Market's principles over a far wider area.

Admittedly, however, such a project, the most ambitious in the world's economic history, cannot be achieved rapidly. Even if it were launched now as an ultimate objective it would require years of patient construction while tariffs between the community's members were reduced at phased intervals, as in Europe.

The danger, and a very real one, is that, lacking even this attempt, the free world will soon be honeycombed by a series of discriminatory blocs that will only serve to compartmentalize trade and aggravate the difficulty of uniting it later.

Thus the long-run opportunities of enlarged trade on the one hand and the short-run dangers of new trade restrictions on the other must condition Canada's policy toward the new situation, good or bad, now rapidly emerging in the world's commerce.

If Canada believes in maximum trade, as all its political parties protest, it should be the first nation to work for an ultimate Free World Economic Community and the last to obstruct it by raising new trade barriers, as it has lately been doing.

Of course Canada, a relatively small and weak nation, cannot dominate the policies of the great powers but it has far more power, in the world of trade, than its population suggests. For Canada, small as it is in numbers, has become one of the world's first half dozen exporters and importers.

Its exports are vital to many nations, especially the United States. Its market is vital to them, too. And Canada still maintains its unique position as the only Commonwealth nation in North America with closer history ties than the United States in Europe.

Given that middle position and the will to lead, Canada could deeply influence both the United States and Europe in beginning now, however slow the process may be, the creation of a Free World Economic Community. But this attempt has been rejected by the government with the excuse (not the reason) that it would violate GATT.

Recognizing that GATT cannot solve our problems and admitting that the Free World Economic Community will not be fully created under the best of conditions for some years to come, what course should Canada follow in the immediate future?

Though all the wrenching decisions soon to face us cannot be foreseen now, the basic principle of a sound Canadian policy should be plain enough. Canada should work wherever possible through every available channel, for freer trade.

If it cannot free trade sufficiently through GATT it should seek special tariff deals with any nations or groups of nations prepared to take them and then leave these agreements open to any other state willing to accept them on a reciprocal basis.

For example, if we lose our preferential tariff position in Britain we should maintain these preferences in the rest of the Commonwealth and offer them to non-Commonwealth states that will give us the same kind of bargain in return.

Far short of bilateral free trade, with all its political implications, we should seek a reduction of tariffs between Canada and the United States.

By a series of such bargains we could build a network of economic bridges spanning not only the Atlantic but the Pacific and tending to unite instead of dividing the free world.

To be sure, this would involve some tariff discrimination in the first place, precisely as we are enforcing discrimination now in the Commonwealth preference system and as Europe enforces it in the Six and the Seven. But the charge of discrimination would be answered if we were prepared to allow any free nation into these agreements, provided that it granted us appropriate reciprocal concessions in its own market.

This policy, it will be said, has been said already by the Canadian government, would be an attempt to bypass the strict code of GATT. Certainly it would. And certainly so long as GATT remains stalled at dead centre it must be bypassed; or more accurately, must be reinvigorated and carried forward to its real purpose by new methods of advance if the free world's economic problems in general, and Canada's in particular, are to have any adequate chance of solution. At the moment, however, Canadian policy, like GATT itself, is stalled.

(Fifth of a series)

REPORTING

OTTAWA—In an important exposition of government thinking on various trading courses Canada might follow, Trade Minister Hees has suggested that Commonwealth members might consider new "steps" to promote increased commerce with one another.

"It seems to me," Hees said in a major policy speech at Toronto on Tuesday, "that if Britain finds that she cannot obtain from the European Common Market countries the kind of arrangements which would be satisfactory to her Commonwealth partners, the next move might be a re-examination of the possibilities of expanding trade within the Commonwealth."

His words immediately suggest a full dress Commonwealth trade parity like the Empire Trade Conference held at Ottawa in 1932, when the Empire preferential tariff scheme was born.

This is an interesting idea—but one wonders if Hees and the other ministers have considered the price Britain would be almost bound to demand for not joining the ECM. It is free trade within the Commonwealth; the reworking of the Commonwealth into a free trading bloc like the ECM.

Is the Canadian government prepared to accept free trade with Britain? To accept the offer it flatly rejected when Chancellor of the Exchequer Peter Thorneycroft proposed it at the Mont Tremblant conference in the fall of 1957?

The minister turned down the idea of Canadian membership in the ECM. "It would be unrealistic to expect existing (Canadian) industries, and the few manufacturing industries which we must develop, to prosper and expand if they are forced to face unrestricted competition from the long-established and highly-nurtured industries of Western Europe," he said.

He was unenthusiastic about "a free trade association made up of countries of Western Europe, Britain, the United States and Canada"—the Atlantic common market plan advocated by Liberal leader Pearson. "Canada would not wish to enter into any arrangements which might seriously affect our economic structure and its related employment, unless we were sure that there would be a net gain," Hees said.

By calling for "expanding trade within the Commonwealth," Hees is only proposing what the Conservative party has advocated for years. Actually nobody has been against it.

What would be new are the measures necessary to promote such an increase in Commonwealth trade—that the Commonwealth will become an acceptable substitute for markets in Western Europe lost behind the ECM tariff barrier.

If the Commonwealth were to become a free trading bloc, even over a 15-year period as Thorneycroft proposed in 1957 for bringing about Anglo-Canadian free trade, Canada would face huge problems of industrial adjustment to competition from lower cost industry in Britain, India and Hong Kong. But Hees objects to Canadian membership in the ECM on the grounds that Canadian industry cannot compete with that of Western Europe.

Hees also proposes that our industry become "more and more competitive" in world markets by improving quality and design and reducing costs. The question is whether costs can be cut enough to fit Canada advantageously into a Commonwealth free trade bloc without lowering wages and decreasing the Canadian standard of living.

McClellan ... warns of danger

Reds-Hoffa Pact Curbs Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator John McClellan said today alliances linking allegedly Communist-dominated labor unions and James R. Hoffa's Teamsters could wield "lethal and monopolistic power."

McClellan, Arkansas Democrat who is chairman of the Senate internal security subcommittee, called for enactment of legislation to curb them.

Hoffa testified Friday he is strengthening his "mutual assistance" pact with Harry Bridges' west coast longshoremen's union and also has an alliance with the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union.

Bridges' union was expelled from the CIO in 1950 on charges of following Communist policies. The Mine-Mill union was kicked out of the CIO the same year as subversive to the Communist line.

The subcommittee labelled both unions as Communist-dominated.

"I don't know whether they are Communist-dominated or not," Hoffa said of the two unions. "There will be no pact between the Teamsters union and any organization so convicted."

Hoffa said under oath that he has "not associated with Communists, is not a Communist and never intends to be."

CANADA AT UN

Radiation Plan Submitted

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A Canadian formula for measuring atomic radiation on a world-wide basis was circulated among the 101 member countries of the United Nations today.

Canada submitted its resolution to the UN secretariat Friday night, once again noting the global anxiety caused by fallout and the resumption of nuclear tests.

The plan co-sponsored by 18 countries—envisages the collection of radiation data like weather reports and its prompt relay through world-girding networks.

It would have the 16th UN General Assembly express deep concern "that as a result of the renewed discharge into the earth's environment of radioactive debris there have been sharp increases in the levels of radioactive fallout in many parts of the world."

It does not mention the Soviet Union—which recently resumed nuclear testing in the atmosphere, nor the United States, which followed with tests underground. But it:

"Declares that both concern for the future of mankind and the fundamental principles of international law impose a responsibility on all states concerning actions which might have harmful biological consequences for the existing and future generations of peoples of other states."

None of the major powers are co-sponsors but informants said United States and Britain would not oppose the plan.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

We Made It!

FRIDAY the 13th has come and gone, and no apparent evils, beyond what is normal these days, have resulted. Having spent yesterday covering in its fallout shelter with its fingers crossed around its rabbit's foot, this column emerged in the small hours this morning full of joie de vivre and ready to face many weeks of immunity from the troubles which reset the naturally superstitious.

It will be a long time before Friday the 13th rolls round again. And a good thing, too.

Mind you, it was quite comfortable in the old shelter. It was almost a relief when the flashlight batteries finally gave out; one can only read the morning paper so many times before its sprightly freshness begins to pall; and then, the darkness is so restful.

SILENUS

And a few hours of fasting does nobody any harm. Another good thing which resulted from the darkness was the invisibility of all those cans of beans.

Just the same, Saturday looks pretty good. Not a black cat in sight. They must have all got run over yesterday, crossing paths amidst heavy traffic. Serves them right.

No doubt about it, superstitions cut both ways. Take parsley, for instance. It is hard to grow. The seeds are reluctant to perform. And this is not all, either; if you sow them across, instead of along the garden, no good will result. And if you are a married woman, and your longitudinal row of parsley comes up, you will have the power of ruling your family roost.

This is because the Devil himself has a special regard for parsley. "Himself" did I say? This parsley bit is, come to think of it, another shred of proof which we can add to the already formidable body of evidence which exists to show that the Devil is, in fact, a feminine character.

But enough of this. Having got through yesterday unscathed, this column wishes to preserve itself further. As the poet Nash sings:

"Parsley is pharsely"

U.S. Jets for Yugoslavia Condemned by Senators

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. sale of 135 Sabre jet fighters to Communist Yugoslavia has run into sharp criticism from some members of Congress.

Two senators urged that the deal be cancelled and Representative Otto Passman, Louisiana Democrat, said the transaction "borders on treason."

The sale—a package deal in which eight Yugoslav air force men are being trained at Perrin Air Base, Texas—was disclosed Friday by the state department.

The reason for the transaction, said the state department, was to help Yugoslavia stay free of Soviet domination.

The sale of the U.S. surplus all-weather F-86D interceptor planes is by far the largest U.S. arms transaction with Belgrade since Yugoslavia's President Tito halted American arms aid to his country in 1957.

The state department said Yugoslavia paid cash for the planes and the training in a business transaction which did not involve foreign aid.

SAYS DEAL 'PHONEY'

Passman termed the transaction "as phoney as a $3 bill." He added "If there was a sale at all, which I doubt, the planes cost the Yugoslav government only a small fraction of the planes' cost and the Communist government used money given to them by this country to pay for the aircraft. . . it borders on treason and makes me sick to see our country do something like this."

Senator John Tower, Texas Republican, said that the Yugoslav airmen should be shipped home and a total embargo placed on aid to Yugoslavia. He said there has never been any doubt in his mind that Tito is in league with Russia to further world communism.

Senator Henry Jackson, Washington Democrat, said the Kennedy administration should consider cancelling the arrangement because of views expressed by Tito in the recent meeting of neutrals in Belgrade. However, officials here said they believe the sale, delivery and payment have been completed.

Officials said the package deal is costing Yugoslavia $1,600,000. Each plane is being sold for $10,000, they said. The Sabre jets, declared surplus last year, originally cost $343,000 apiece.

State department press officer Lincoln White said the decision to send the aircraft to Yugoslavia was taken in mid-January, shortly before President Kennedy succeeded Dwight D. Eisenhower in the White House.

Should Patient Be Told?

In a recent Swedish study, a group of 101 patients with inoperable cancer were studied. Of the 38 who were told honestly what was wrong, only five reacted poorly; another six were at first upset, but they soon accepted the situation with composure. The remaining 27 reacted favorably, and nine of them said they were glad that they had been told the truth.

Of the 63 who were not told the truth by the surgeon, 20 were soon told by someone else, usually someone in the family. This is a point that I always have made, that we doctors are naive when we pride ourselves on not telling the patient, but telling his family. My experience has been that usually someone in the family soon gives the thing away. Three of the 63 people had a bad psychic reaction. Among the 43 who apparently did not learn the truth, six reacted badly. What most physicians fail to remember is that it is often embarrassing and difficult to keep treating a patient who is steadily going down hill—when one cannot tell him why he does not get better.

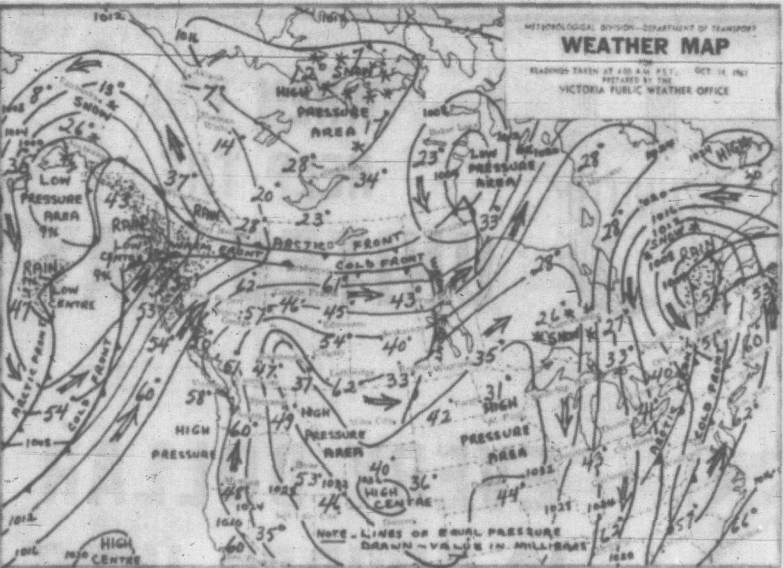

After half a century of practicing medicine, I still feel strongly that the patient with cancer ought to be told the truth if he asks what is wrong. If he doesn't ask, and does not seem to want to know, I do not force the information on him. Most of my patients have said that they were grateful to me because I was honest and had answered all of their questions as well as I could.

One thing I never care to do, and this is to guess how long a person will live. I won't do it unless in the rare case in which a businessman wants to know about how much time he will have to put his house in order.

A while ago, Dr. Gatch, that distinguished and loved physician of Indiana, now in his 82nd year, wrote that a doctor might try to keep alive a patient with incurable cancer only until the time comes when no useful purpose to him or to his loved ones can be served by prolonging his life. Until the coming of sulfonamides and penicillin, people with inoperable cancer often were relieved of their suffering by a kindly pneumonia which came to put them gently to sleep. The great Sir William Osler, the world's most distinguished physician, used to speak of such pneumonias as "the old man's friend." Unfortunately, today, when the kindly pneumonia comes, we physicians step in and cure it with an antibiotic, and then the poor old fellow has to continue perhaps in an agony of pain for a few months more.

No physician wants to do anything to end a man's life, but many a kindly doctor when he sees that a man is dying and knows that there is no hope of bringing him back to a useful or comfortable life, can see no sense in fighting desperately to hold the old fellow here.

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Winning the first national Canadian music contest, the Jeunesse Musicale, this summer, has eliminated for 21-year-old pianist Marek Jablonski, one or two difficult rungs in the ladder he must climb to achieve his goal.

The young Polish-Canadian has no second thoughts about his future. He wants to be a professional concert pianist—"if I can."

He is in the city to appear as guest artist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra this weekend.

Physically, Marek Jablonski does not appear powerful but he radiates a warmth and earnestness that bespeak an inner power. He is quiet and unaffected in his manner and has a way of reflecting deeply before answering a question.

All things considered, including his birthplace, it is no surprise to learn that Mr. Jablonski favors the music of the romantics of the 19th century.

He considers himself very lucky to have won first prize in the Jeunesse Musicale contest. Twelve pianists had been selected to compete on a basis of record and accomplishment. One condition is that contestants must have spent a year studying outside Canada.

However, pianist and conductor were no strangers to France in 1962.

Mr. Jablonski had qualified by virtue of a Dmitri Mitropoulos scholarship that had taken him to the Juilliard School in New York.

As first prize winner he has been enabled to continue his studies at Juilliard, has been financed in the present tour across Canada giving solo recitals and appearing with symphony orchestras, and in 1962 will go to France for a tour of that country.

Following that, as soon as he feels himself ready, Jeunesse Musicale will sponsor his debut in Paris and New York.

With his father and mother he came to Canada 10 years ago and the family settled in Edmonton.

His musical education began in Krakow, Poland, before he was six years old. But only after friends had intervened on his behalf and urged his mother to send the boy to the conservatory.

SCRAWNY KID

He had been playing by ear since the age of four, but his mother, a pianist and thoroughly artistic personality, had not encouraged him.

"I was a scrawny kid," he tells you, "and my mother thought I ought to go in for something to develop me physically. In fact she didn't want me to be an artist because she thought artists were unhappy people."

During the three years in England, the boy learned to speak the language perfectly but was without music. He began lessons again at the age of 12 after coming to Canada. From that time he was a consistent scholarship winner.

"In fact, I can honestly say my musical education has cost my parents very little," he tells you.

He has used recordings to help him study interpretation and has quite a collection but he's less enthusiastic today about this aspect—"from now on I'm going to spend my money on going to more concerts instead of buying records."

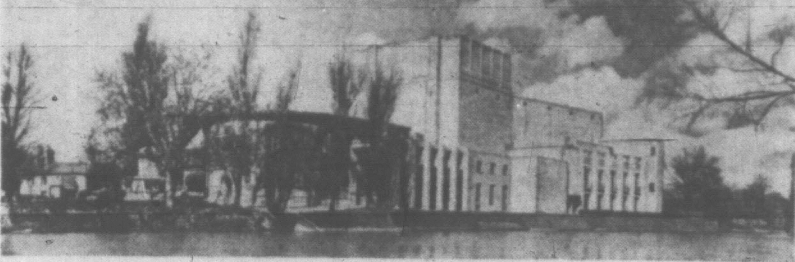

TOO MECHANICAL

Recording sessions themselves he finds unpleasant. He dislikes the mass production and the mechanical business of starting his performance on a cue from a glass-enclosed sound engineer.

"In fact present-day recordings are engineered to such

WHERE WERE CULTURE VULTURES?

Fading of the Green Dulls Stratford Scene

By TOM A. CULLEN

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, England (NEA) — A 50 per cent slump in the number of American visitors here has plunged this celebrated birthplace of William Shakespeare into unrelieved gloom.

Gone are the big rubberneck buses full of visiting firemen from the States which used to line Stratford's narrow streets. Gone, too, are the New York culture-vultures who thought nothing of flying the Atlantic just to see the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre do "Othello."

Worse still, the dollar bills—those tiny green ambassadors of goodwill—are missing.

At Stratford merchants count their losses, they are blaming the Berlin crisis for keeping Americans away. Too many Berlin headlines, too many photos of barbed wire rolled up in front of the Brandenburg Gate—these have caused Americans to hug their hearths, they claim.

Also, President Kennedy's "save dollars" appeal is credited with persuading many Americans to stay home this year.

KNOCK KICK-KNACKS

Those who have ventured as far afield as the Shakespeare country are spending far less money this year, according to Miss Eleanor House, reception secretary of the English Speaking Union at Harvard House, Stratford-on-Avon.

Effective Sept. 9, the amount of knock-knacks which an American tourist is allowed to bring home with him duty free was slashed from $500 to $100. This has knocked the bottom out of the souvenir trade.

Heretofore, the Americans have been the mainstay of Stratford's Shakespeare industry. Every year they have descended by the thousands upon this small Warwickshire town (pop. 14,983) for an orgy of sightseeing.

With reverence they have paid their respects at the half-timbered house in Henley Street where Shakespeare was born and at his grave in the Holy Trinity Church, and then gone on to the Anne Hathaway cottage a mile away.

They have fed the swans in the river Avon and attended stunning performances of Shakespeare drama at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre. And they have left Stratford the richer by their dollars.

In 1769, Garrick organized a great Shakespeare Jubilee Celebration at Stratford, with fireworks, pealing bells and an ode which he had composed especially for the occasion. Since then Stratford has never looked back.

In the present dollar crisis the only thing that consoles Stratford merchants is the thought that the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth is less than three years off. They hope then to recoup all previous losses, as representations from all parts of the civilized world will be gathering here to pay their homage to the bard.

TWO for the SHOW

AA (Oscar Class) BB (Worthwhile) A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days) C (To put in time)

(BB PLUS) "THE PLEASURE OF HIS COMPANY" (Royal) — Movie goes with a sophisticated turn of mind will doubtless enjoy Paramount's adaptation of Samuel Taylor's Broadway play, "The Pleasure of His Company."

Others, on the other hand, may believe that the almost two-hour running time is just long enough to allow the lightweight plot to break under its own weight.

Debbie Reynolds is the daughter of Lilli Palmer and her first husband, the dashing man-about-the-world Fred Astaire. Debbie, who is about to marry rancher Tab Hunter, demands that her father be present for the wedding.

Of course the old playboy finally turns up and makes himself at home in the manor of prominent business man Gary Merrill, the new hubby of Miss Palmer. Naturally he regards Astaire with a wary eye, so does Lilli, so does Hunter. Astaire has the happy knack of making everyone feel — often for the first time — contented with his or her lot in life.

The lines are crisp, knowing and very, very gay. And those in tune will find it often very funny. All conduct themselves well, especially Miss Palmer.

Opera Announced

Auditions will be held next Thursday night at 8 in Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall, Vancouver Street, for the Victoria Musical Art Society production of Puccini's one-act opera, "Gianni Schicchi."

The cast of 15 calls for several basses and baritones, as well as a contralto, soprano and mezzo soprano and tenor. The opera will be produced and directed by Audrey Johnson, with Capt. James Gayer as musical director and Maurice Johnson as technical director. Production dates are January 22, 23 and 24.

BEHIND THE BY-LINE

One of the chief assets which Gordon Bell brings to his post as business editor of the Times is a hard-headed realism which leads him to dig far beneath the glossy covers of annual reports to come up with solid, and sometimes none too pleasant, facts.

He comes by the attribute honestly, having served as both city editor and assistant managing editor of a metropolitan newspaper—jobs which demand a somewhat jaundiced eye as well as a wide range of knowledge and a feeling for research.

Gordon Ross Bell was born in Regina, moved with his parents to Vancouver, where he discovered salt water, completed high school, served 18 months in the RCNVR, and attended UBC.

He went back to the prairies to begin his business career in the circulation department of the Edmonton Bulletin, switched to the editorial side, and, after the demise of the Bulletin, joined the Calgary Albertan as a reporter.

It was here he received his desk training as city and assistant managing editor, with a period of editorial writing.

All in all, Gordon Bell spent 13 years back on the prairies, but the sniff of salt water air never really left his nostrils.

He had to come back to the Pacific coast.

Easy Way to Climb Pike's Peak

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Nobody need bust anything more strenuous than a $10 bill going up Pike's Peak these cushy days. You can ride up a highway in your own Hispano Suiza or else sit inside the plexi-glass bubble of the cog railway and leave the driving to the engineer.

Sutton

Things have come to a pretty pass around the peak first discovered by Zebulon Pike in 1806. Ole Zeb insisted that the hill would never be climbed by mortal man when he struck out on the first try at an ascent.

The Peak of Pike is nearly three times as high as Switzerland's Mount Regl, almost twice as high as Mount Pilatus.

It ventures 2,700-feet higher than the Jungfrau's top railway, which has long been popping the eyes of American tourists.

Besides conquering the mountains, the local folk have also managed to make a mockery of the seasons. Over at the Broadmoor, a gigantic resort with enough diversions to keep an over-exercised octopus pleasantly occupied, things have been fixed so guests can ice skate in the summer, swim in the heated outdoor pool in October, and ski when the winter clouds are unco-operative.

The Broadmoor, which dates from the First World War, has had its face lifted half a dozen times, but it never looked lovelier. Silent escalators slip upwards from the lobby transporting guests to a handsome sun-washed room brimming with flowers and paintings and paved with sun-colored carpets from Puerto Rico.

A new saloon called the Terrace Lounge has been fashioned as a home for some of the Oriental treasures of Spencer Penrose, who built the Broadmoor and much of the Springs with booty from a happy gold strike in nearby Cripple Creek.

A terrace bordering Cheyenne Lake silently reflects the image of Cheyenne Mountain, a mound studded with attractions installed by Penrose. Over the lake's glossy bosom float paddle boats, water skis in the proper season and muted swans which will not disturb the guests in the rooms above.

Coming this fall is a modern new lakeside addition to the Broadmoor, with most rooms looking out to water and mountain. Even the kitchen has tremendous picture windows, so breath-taking that many a steak man over-stays while a distracted chef contemplates the 50-mile sweep that stretches clear to Kansas.

On the nine-floor summit of its new addition the Broadmoor is installing a restaurant with one of the most memorable views in the West—a skyscraping eagle's nest perched in the Rockies. Each of the 144 new rooms will have picture windows, and, despite the lofty locale, each will be air-conditioned.

The end rooms in the new building look down on the golf club which functions on almost every day of the year. The only thing that holds back a golfer here is a sometime snowfall, but it never remains long, and most storms are broken up by the protective bulk of Pike's Peak.

For those who seek the snow there is the park 10 minutes from the hotel known as Ski Broadmoor. Here, with only the slightest encouragement from the weather—a frosty temperature, for instance—the local technocrats will turn on the machines that produce artificial snow to cover the half-mile downhill run that begins at the 7,200-foot level.

It is possible to ski in the morning and play golf in the afternoon, followed by an outdoor swim in the heated pool. The view of the snow-capped peaks from the pool only makes it more adventuresome. It is also possible to ski in the evening, for the floodlights glow until 10.

Sometimes all the lights are turned out and the ski instructors, imported from the Alps, come racing down the hill carrying torches and singing "Broadmoor Uber Alles," and other anthems. Lunch cocktails and dinner are served at the ski lodge and there is a big copper hooded fireplace for songs and grog.

After digging into Cripple Creek and coming up with gold and building the Broadmoor Hotel, Penrose turned his attention to Cheyenne Mt., which he honeycombed with all sorts of embellishments.

A bright red and white streamliner, billed as the world's only streamlined narrow gauge cog railway, departs the Broadmoor grounds for the mountain zoo. Inhabited by gorillas, giraffes and an assortment of penguins that look like a convention of head-waiters in the dining rooms below, the zoo is reputed to be one of the cleanest and best smelling in the world.

Halfway up the mountain stands a granite tower dedicated to Will Rogers. As it happens Rogers is not buried there, but Penrose is, and so is his wife and best friend. But the walls are covered with pictures of Rogers and a bell tower clangs out the hours, each one a sonic memorial to the American humorist.

At its 9,300-foot summit the mountain is topped off by a lodge built in adobe style. Meals are served and the penthouse is let to honeymooners. It's about as far as you can get away from it all short of hiring a balloon.

Down at the hotel's level the Broadmoor-World Arena seats 5,000 for hockey games and will be the site next March of the world and European hockey championships. It is also open for public skating all year around and, no matter the season, ladies in brief costumes are twirling on the ice—bikinis on the rocks.

Seattle World's Fair in 1962 To Benefit Entire Northwest

CANNES, France (AP) — Jewel against a backdrop of Washington State's unparalleled scenic beauty.

Rosellini promised the fair's "expo-loding service" would co-ordinate housing and hold a "firm hand against price gouging."

The governor, currently on a 10-day European tour to promote the event, said the world's fair will provide a great impetus for the U.S. Travel Agency, a new federal program to spark foreign travel to the United States.

Rosellini told the 2,000 travel agents attending the society's meeting that the Seattle exposition will be a special dividend for the 1962 tourist headed for America's shores.

He described the six-months fair as "an $80,000,000 tourist attraction... an architectural jewel against a backdrop of Washington State's unparalleled scenic beauty."

Rosellini promised the fair's "expo-loding service" would co-ordinate housing and hold a "firm hand against price gouging."

The governor told the travel agents he was designating the state of Washington as the "tourist's must-buy for 1962" and had called upon hotel and motel operators to plan for fair and proper rate schedules that will attract visitors. He also will urge private householders to prepare home hospitality "which will afford the foreign traveller an insight into our way of life."

Rosellini was scheduled to return to Rome and will fly back to Vancouver, B.C., Sunday. He is due back to his Olympia, Wash., office Monday.

Texas Inn Caters To Private Planes

An airtel catering to private planes is the newest thing in Texas, where "His" and "Her" airplanes are not uncommon.

Texas being Texas, the private plane clientele accounts for a considerable portion of the nightly register at the new Love Field in Dallas. Special courtesy cars flit out to the airport to meet the private planes with the same regularity as they meet commercial flights. Facilities at the new motel are in keeping with the special billionaire clientele and are described as providing "a 10-gallon welcome for guests" with a keynote of "lavish luxury."

One of 18 motor hotels operated by the Executive Inn chain, largest wholly-owned motor hotel group in the U.S., the new hostelry in Dallas admits to being strictly a "Texas phenomenon" in its private plane clientele. Because of its large patronage from private planes, it will

Arctic Dogsledding For Novel Holiday

OTTAWA (CP)—Arctic dogsledding, anyone, for a holiday that's different?

Don't bet against it in the next year or two, tourist promoter Max McConnell of the northern affairs department said Wednesday.

Two of three tourist operators have expressed interest in the idea. Trips by husky would be made perhaps 50 miles out into the wilderness and back in April and May, when the Arctic sun is shining longer every day and the weather is favorable.

INCREASE SEEN

Mr. McConnell is concerned with helping tourism expand in the Northwest Territories and he said there appears to have been a 25-per-cent increase in visitors this year. In 1960, some 1,000 persons visited the territories and spent an estimated $450,000 there.

Next year, for the first time, arrangements will be made to see just how many visitors there are, including those to points other than the sophisticated Western towns like Yellowknife, which now can be reached by road, as of last summer.

Festivities next door in the Yukon, celebrating the gold rush, are expected to help the Mackenzie River tourist flow as well.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Garden Value of Plants Not Reflected in Price

By JACK BEASTALL

The selling price of a plant is determined by the ease with which it can be propagated and the length of time needed for it to reach a saleable size.

A plant easy to produce and reaching a saleable size in a short period will be lower in price than one that is more difficult, or slower growing.

However, every plant has a value that is quite distinct from its selling price, and it is not always the highest-priced plants that give the greatest value for the dollars invested.

For example, two plants may each have a selling price of one dollar. One may be of garden interest for a period of four to six weeks which may be its flowering period, while the other may have spring interest in its young growths. Jack summer interest in its flowers, fall interest in the color of its foliage, and winter interest in its buds and bark. The second plant, being of interest for 52 weeks, has almost nine times the garden value of the first plant, although the initial cost was the same.

Another example is two plants of the same price, one of which remains much the same year after year or tends to deteriorate unless given attention, and the other which increases in size and beauty with each successive season.

In 10 years the garden value of the first may be the same or less, whereas the second would have increased its garden value possibly tenfold.

PRICE STANDARDS

Occasionally one meets a gardener whose memory retains the purchase price of every plant in the garden. The price is used as a standard by which the value of the plant is judged, and is quoted to the visitor for the impression it will create.

Quite often it takes but little knowledge of plant material to realize that far greater garden value could have been obtained with a considerably smaller outlay of cash.

I believe most nurserymen will agree with me when I state there have been times when they have sold a quantity of expensive plants to a customer without experiencing satisfaction in the deal because of the feeling that greater garden value was possible for the same expenditure.

The nurseryman, however, great his knowledge and experience, cannot force a customer to invest his plant dollars wisely. He can only make suggestions, and too often these suggestions are construed as an effort to unload surplus stock.

INVESTMENT

The man who grows the plants, knows the plants, and he is very sensitive to their garden value. His advice when investing in plants should be as acceptable as that of a stockbroker when investing in stocks and bonds.

Another factor entering into garden value is the amount of work that will be required to maintain a plant in a presentable condition. Pruning, spraying, removal of spent blossoms, frequent lifting and digging and replanting are all expenditures or added costs.

Plants requiring considerable attention along these lines are of less garden value than those which more or less take care of themselves. Often it takes but another variety of the same plant to increase the garden value.

In a small garden, fast growing plant material has a lower garden value than slow growing material, because a shorter period will elapse before its overpowering presence makes removal compulsory.

YEARS WASTED

While it takes but a short time to cut down the offending tree or shrub, the removal of the roots could involve an outlay of cash in addition to the disruption of a large area of the garden.

The sad part about having to remove unsuitable material is the number of years of growth that have been wasted, years that could have made a slower growing plant into a feature of the garden.

A fast growing plant, purchased for $1.50 and removed after 10 years, has cost 15 cents a year. The initial cost of a slower growing plant may be three times as much, or $4.50, but in 45 years it could be the main garden attraction at a cost of only 10 cents a year and no extra expenditure needed for a replacement.

It is not to be expected that every gardener who buys a plant will have an extensive knowledge of plant material and be competent to judge garden value. The purchase of a plant should always be looked upon as an investment rather than an expense, and seeking the advice of a plant grower results in a wise investment that will pay increasing dividends as the years pass.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

A sowing of sweet peas outdoors in a sunny, sheltered, well-drained spot will produce cut flowers by early May if winter is not severe.

Soil is becoming moist enough for nurseries to be able to dig from the open fields. Conifers and broadleaf evergreen shrubs will now be available. Leaf-losing trees, roses and other large shrubs must wait for digging until leaves fall.

Plants available in cans or other containers may of course be planted any time.

Most gardeners will be willing to sacrifice the dahlia blossoms now so that tubers can be dug and stored before the ground gets too wet. Store in cool, dry place free of frost.

Prepare now for planting of roses next month. Use well rotted compost or old manure, and bonemeal.

Look for cuttings of perennial phlox, and root them over winter in sandy soil in a cold frame.

Compost all fallen leaves, stems, old plants, all garden refuse. Sprinkling of soil on each layer aids decomposition, and heap should be turned during winter.

Remove yellow leaves from all brassicas (the cabbage family) and lower leaves from brussels sprouts to aid in development of the "buttons".

Real Estate Salesmen Imprisoned

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two former real estate salesmen were sent to jail Friday for conspiring to defraud a mortgage company of $15,000.

Magistrate Oscar Orr sentenced William W. Cooper of White Rock, to two years less one day and Clifford Tapley, 60, of Vancouver, to 18 months.

Cooper, head of a White Rock securities firm, is already serving an 18-month sentence on fraud charges.

Police said a Vancouver mortgage company was defrauded in a deal in which a clear title property changed owners through a forged transfer of deed. They said a fraudulent mortgage was then arranged on the property.

Mayor to Ask Study Of James Bay Patrol

Mayor Percy Scurrell, Friday, told aldermen he would ask police commission to study and report on a house patrol organization in James Bay.

The undertaking followed complaints by Ald. Michael Griffin that a number of James Bay homeowners in a four-block area had signed $25 annual contracts for the service. He said private companies that provide night patrols of property should be bonded as private detectives now are.

Ald. Griffin asked that the finance committee look into the matter to see if a bonding recommendation should be made to the provincial government.

GETTING SETTLED

A partner in the new firm, president Earl Lehna, 1248 Fort, explained later: "We're still trying to get settled and are in the process of having proper identification cards, including photographs, prepared for our men."

The other partner is Armand Guyon, of the same address, which is also patrol headquarters.

Sale of School Upheld

DUNCAN — In spite of a petition from 15 parents and a department of education request to reconsider its decision, Cowichan school board this week decided to sell Sylvania School.

The board made it clear it is selling the building and not the land. Members of the board pointed out the department apparently misunderstood its intention.

The petition called on the board to take immediate steps to reopen Sylvania School (the former pupils now attend Bayview School).

Trustee Wilf Peck said: "The present building is poor and dilapidated and becoming more so."

GANGES — Nursing sisters of both world wars will be invited to the annual Armistice dinner to be held at Mahon Hall Nov. 11.

Services will be held at the Cenotaph in the morning.

NANAIMO — Legion president Colin Murcheson said here Saturday meetings are being held to organize a large parade on Remembrance Day next month.

Sea and Air Cadets and three bands are expected to take part in the parade.

NANAIMO — The large Mayo Lumber Company sawmill here may soon be operating around the clock.

Frank Rowebottom, an official of the company, said here Friday present plans call for an expansion of operations.

This week the company bought out a logging operation on the Sechart Peninsula.

NANAIMO — Harewood community will continue to improve Colliery Park this winter.

Plans include the construction of a network of paths on the north side of a man-made lake in the park and a rustic bridge over a small chasm.

COURTNEY (CP)—Roger Lampitt, 26, of Vancouver, already serving a three-year term for conspiring to utter a forged document, was sentenced Friday to an additional three years on a charge of having safebreaking and housebreaking tools in his possession.

Bulbs from Holland — tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocuses — are the result of centuries of breeding and cultivation. ## Blades Draw 10,286 Fans But Bucks Spoil Opener

SPORTS
DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor
10 Victoria Daily Times SAT., OCT. 14, 1961

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY Doug Peden

Gone from our city but far from forgotten, professional hockey moved back into California last night as some of our old Cougar friends played host to another bunch of former Victoria puck pullers who are now wearing the livery of Portland Buckaroos.

The Blades and the Bucks lured 10,286 fans into the 14,300-seat Los Angeles Memorial Sports Arena, which suggests that Jim Piggott, selling seats at $4 tops, has at least a chance of eventually striking it rich in his quest for California hockey gold.

The Blades started the new Western Hockey League season on an unhappy note by bowing 7-3 to the Buckaroos and the thought here is that more than a few fans could be thinking they were short-changed in the matter of bruises and bloodshed. There were only 30 minutes in penalties, no fights, and nary a report of stretcher cases.

Hockey is a boisterous pastime, ill-suited for the weak or timid, but the way Los Angeles writers have been describing the game, it would be no wonder if potential puck patrons in the smoggy city were expecting an ice-show version of gladiator games from the old Roman arenas.

'Untouchables' Likely Prospects

If California crowds don't continue to flock to the arena to watch hockey as we know it, they might have to toss an angry Mexican bull and a hungry Canadian grizzly on the ice with the players in order to please the people.

To show you what they might have been expecting, here are some portions of a column by Jim Murray in The Los Angeles Times a few weeks back:

"This fall, a new game is going to come to Los Angeles—'Murder on the Rocks'. The polite name for it is ice hockey, but there's no polite way to play it. It's a kind of a combination of the Ice Capades and The Untouchables.

"It's the kind of a game where the mere news of a new franchise is going to be opened up is enough to send surgical supply stocks soaring. There is a bull market in sutures and gauze factories go on overtime. The local mortician is almost always in the front row surreptitiously going over the program notes in case he has a few words to say over one of the participants later in the week.

"Much is made of the mayhem in pro football, where two 250-pound human bulldozers crack into each other at the snap of a ball. In hockey, the bulldozers come into each other at 45 mph. That's closing speed of 90 mph and if they did it without protective armor there wouldn't be enough for the mortician to say a few words over.

"The puck in hockey travels 90 to 100 mph and the War of 1812 was fought with more humane weapons. As if things weren't bad enough, some Dracula on skates perfected the "slap shot" some years ago. This is hockey's answer to the beanball. The puck leaves the ice in a low, rising trajectory, usually in the direction of an opponent's teeth, and, while it doesn't score many goals, it scores a lot of hits.

Played by 'Roughneck Canadians'

"Sometimes there's so much crockery on the ice it looks like someone accidentally sat down on his dentures. "What the blades and puck can't do, a hockey stick can. In fact, come to think of it, for destructive potential, a hockey player could give a German soldier two a side.

"To get the picture, imagine what would happen if Wally Moon sneaked a bat down the first base line some night and then suddenly brought it down over Frank Robinson's ears. Wally would be through in baseball. So would Frank Robinson as far as that goes.

"In hockey, you'd be through if you didn't do it. If you kill somebody, you're out of hockey. Unless you can prove you didn't mean to do it.

"We've only got minor league hockey in Los Angeles—the Blades. Whether that means they cut down on the stand-by transfusions or not, I don't know, but I do know that any kind of hockey is a wildly exciting sport. It's played by a bunch of roughneck Canadian and Minnesota kids who say "oot" for "out" and "aboot" for "about" and who didn't know there was such a thing as summer till they grew up. They just thought there was six weeks when the ice was kind of slushy.

Ah, what a pity! One game already gone and not a single corpse on the Los Angeles ice.

SHORTS IN SPORTS

NEWMARKET, England (Reuters)—Avons Pride, a 100-to-shot, today won the Cesarewitch Stakes, beating the South African-owned filly Alcoa in a photo finish.

Persian Lancer at 20-to-1 finished third in the field of 27 behind Alcoa who was 18-to-1.

Avons Pride, a four-year-old colt, barely held on to beat a determined last-minute challenge by Alcoa in the 2 1/4-mile event.

Right up to the last furlong in the 100-year-old event it was anybody's race among the six leaders and it was only in the Veterans stole the spotlight in winning and losing causes as all eight clubs combined to blow the lid off the 1961-62 Western Hockey League, the 14th consecutive year of professional hockey on the west coast.

The form chart held true except in Vancouver, where the light-hitting Canucks surprised 2,700 hometown fans by battling the rugged Spokane Comets to a 3-3 overtime tie.

At Los Angeles, a near-record crowd of 10,286 was on hand to see the defending champion Portland Buckaroos score five times in the final period for a 7-3 victory over the Blades and spoil California's re-entry into the WHL after a 12-year absence.

The league's crowd record is 10,334, set at a Seattle-Portland playoff game last season at Portland.

At Seattle, crafty Rudy Filion led the way with three goals as the Totems trounced

Fash Adds Two to All-Time Record

Playing-coach Phil Maloney was the only bright light for the Canucks in a sloppy opener. He scored Vancouver's first goal and tied the game with another with just 49 seconds left in regulation time.

Murray Wilkie fired the third Vancouver goal while Bev Bell, Gerry Brisson and Steve Witluk handled the Spokane scoring, all in the second period.

Gordie Fashaway, the Bucks' top sniper last season, added to his all-time league goal-scoring record with the tying and winning goals in Los Angeles. The two goals gave Fashaway a career total of 422.

Fashaway's scoring ignited

Filion Enjoys a Five-Point Night

Filion, third in the scoring race a year ago with 96 points, also added two assists for a brilliant five-point night.

Bill MacFarland and Ed Ehrenverth each scored twice for Seattle and Jim Baird, a rookie from Fort Wayne of the International League, added the other. Baird scored 45 goals last year at Fort Wayne.

Harry Pidhiney, long-time star with Springfield of the American League and captain of the Seals, showed he hasn't lost his scoring eye, getting two of the three San Francisco goals. Former National League star Nick Mickoski got the other.

Chuck Holmes, veteran WHL star, brought the Flyers their comeback victory over the Stampede, a pre-season favorite in the northern division.

U.S. Retains Honors In Ryder Cup Matches

LYTHAM-ST. ANNS, England (AP)—Art Wall and Mike Souchak won their afternoon singles matches today and gave the United States another victory over Britain in the Ryder Cup golf matches.

Wall defeated Harry Weetman, 1 up, to clinch a tie for the Americans and Souchak beat Bernard Hunt, 2 and 1, to give them an outright victory.

The two triumphs in the 18-hole afternoon contests put the U.S. in front 13-7 and the invaders finished up with a 14 1/2-9 1/2 victory.

The cup-holding Americans had piled up a 6-2 advantage in eight foursome matches Friday and increased it to 11-5 by winning four, tying two and losing two of the eight morning 18-hole singles matches.

Palmer, ALLIS TIE. Arnold Palmer, winner of the last British Open, gave the U.S. a 14th point by defeating Tom Halliburton, 46-year-old veteran, 2 and 1. Palmer scored a half-point in the morning round when he was held to a tie by Peter Alliss. Each scored one-under-par 70.

Alliss and Dai Rees of Wales, the outstanding players for Britain, each won their afternoon contests.

DOES ORANGE JUICE KEEP BRUISES AWAY?
LAKE LAND, Fla. (AP)—The day may be dawning when Saturday's star college football turns up for class Monday without a limp or bruise—all because of orange juice.

Three United States college teams—Notre Dame, North Carolina State and Penn State—have been invited to help test a theory that orange juice cuts down on bruises and sore muscles.

A total of $1,750 was voted Friday by the Florida Citrus Commission to help finance the study.

A similar experiment was conducted on Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League five years ago by Dr. Thomas Down, team physician. His results showed that players who consumed more orange juice had fewer muscle cramps, bruises and other superficial injuries.

ST. LOUIS (CP)—Coach Frank Pop Ivy of St. Louis Cardinals said today he considers Sam Etchevery in "sound" condition and that the quarterback will start Sunday against the National Football League champion Philadelphia Eagles.

Ivy was commenting on a report that Etchevery is suffering from a calcium growth in the shoulder of his passing arm and is unable to throw long passes.

Italians Square Davis Cup Test

ROME (UPI)—Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy evened the Davis Cup inter-zone tennis final against the United States at one match each today when he rallied to score a 2-6, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4 victory over Whitney Reed in a contest halted Friday because of darkness.

Immediately after today's match, the Italian Davis Cup committee announced that the doubles match would be played Sunday instead of today, as originally scheduled.

According to Davis Cup rules, if the completion of an interrupted singles match requires more than 15 games, either or both nations can request that the doubles be postponed until the following day.

Today's completion involved 23 games.

In Friday's opening singles match, Jon Douglas defeated Fausto Gardini of Italy, 4-6, 4-6, 7-5, 10-8, 6-0.

Reed, an unorthodox 29-year-old who is ranked eighth in the U.S., complained to the linesman about close baseline calls during his defeat by Pietrangeli.

The crucial call came in the eighth game of the fourth set with Pietrangeli leading, 4-3. Reed led, 40-30, when the linesman ruled a long drive by Pietrangeli "in," deucing the game rather than giving it to the American.

BOOED BY CROWD
Reed was obviously upset and stood for a moment drawing circles with his racket on the portion of the court where he considered that the ball bounced out.

After Pietrangeli won the game to go ahead, 5-3, Reed went over to the linesman to complain and was booed by the crowd of 6,000. Reed won his next service but Pietrangeli also held service in the 10th game to even the match.

Both players showed displeasure over linecalls several times during the final two sets and the crowd booed frequently.

Pietrangeli, fired-up by his chance to win the match, unleashed his best shots in the deciding set.

CURLING CUES

By MATT BALDWIN

Three-time Canadian Champion

Do you have a hankering to get out for a night with the boys or, better still, a couple of times a week?

Well, this game of curling, in the past decade the fastest growing sport in Canada and some of the northern states, just might be the ticket for you, just as it could be the answer for any number of motives for taking a shine to this winter pastime.

After all, there isn't much that this game does not possess.

Recreation, exercise, competition, gamesmanship, sportsmanship, an attraction for all ages—a composite of all that is worth while in sport, which undoubtedly accounts for the fantastic strides curling has made in such a short span.

The beauty of it is that you can gear it to suit your own needs or desires. You can play just as hard as you care to.

Want to forget the cares of the business world for a couple of blissful hours? Or looking for an opportunity to get away from a sharp tongue or a passel of wet-nosed kids at home?

Maybe you're fighting a losing battle of the bulge. If it is just a modicum of exercise you want to shake down your supper, then just moving around those 49-pound rocks should do the trick. But if you really want to tone up those muscles and work off a little suet, you can endeavor yourself to your skip by allying yourself to those sweeping assignments as if your very life depended on it.

Then again, perhaps your legs just won't carry you around the basepaths any longer, or for a spurt of broken-field running on the gridiron—and your competitive spirit may still be thirsting for a little action.

Well, you'd better believe it that curling is what you are looking for. True, the curling lanes offer you a negligible amount of bodily contact, except for a little bodychecking around the teehead now and again.

But take it from me, in this sport you run into guys who want to win so badly that they can taste it—right from the top, championship level down to the bottom section in your home club, you can find that it is for serious.

No just going through the motions!

Nor have you lived 'till you go bonspielling! Why, you have a built-in bridge game between these curling jousts. Four to a team, you know.

Yes, this branch of athletics has a little bit of everything, and then some. The distaff side has found this out, which has to have its pros and cons. No need to be a curling widow. If you can't beat 'em, join 'em. The girls even have their own national championships now.

I'll be telling you all about curling each Saturday watch for my column appearing regularly in The Daily Times.

George Remains At Head of Pack

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP)—Big George Bayer of Miami slipped to a one-over-par 71 Friday but increased his lead to two strokes at the halfway point in the $20,000 Ontario Open.

Bayer, who set the course record with 64 Thursday, has a 36-hole total of 135.

Young Bobby Nichols of Midland, Tex., was second with 137. The former Texas A and M player also shot a 71 over the wind-lashed course.

Distinctive...and so kind to your throat!

LONDON (CP)—The European Cup—soccer prize worth its weight in gold—is up for its seventh year of competition and there is hopes it will come to Britain for the first time.

The best effort by England to date has been by Manchester United, twice a semi-finalist. Hibernian and Glasgow Rangers have also managed to take Scotland that far.

This year England is represented by Tottenham Hotspur, defending English League champion and winner of the Football Association Cup. The Spurs are regarded as good bets to break the Iberian stranglehold on the European Cup.

Their preliminary round against Gornik of Poland last month wasn't impressive. In the first game, played in Poland, Spurs lost 4-2. But they redeemed themselves by winning the return game 8-1, taking the total-points series 10-5.

MEET DUTCH TEAM

Now Spurs have drawn Feyenoord of Holland, and the Dutch shouldn't give the star-studded English club much trouble.

Glasgow Rangers were more convincing in the preliminaries. They knocked out Monaco, a fairly strong club. In the next round, they meet Vorpwaerts of East Germany.

Next to the World Cup, this prize is the most coveted in soccer. It's also lucrative. Bonuses for winning matches can be anything from a sizeable cheque to a luxury automobile.

Last year, Glasgow Rangers played four home matches and ticket sales netted more than £70,000. For Spanish and Italian clubs, who charge higher admission prices, the profit was even greater.

The Cup is competed for by the league champions of 30 European countries. The Soviet Union and Iceland are the only countries not entered.

STARTED BY FRENCHMAN

Matches are played in a home-and-away series, the aggregate score deciding the winner.

The Cup was launched seven years ago, the brainchild of Frenchman Gabriel Hanot, a soccer writer.

It has been dominated by Spain's Real Madrid, which won the trophy the first five years. Last year Benfica of Portugal broke the Spanish monopoly by beating Barcelona in the final.

BOTHERED by calcium growth in shoulder of his passing arm, St. Louis quarterback Sam Echeverry (above) is reported unable to throw long passes.

New York Giants "blitzed" St. Louis in National Football League game last Sunday, rumor has it, by setting defence for short-range passing and not worrying about long ones.

The writer of this weekly advice column is an 11-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own. It has not been changed by his parents or the editor. He welcomes letters from parents. If you want him to discuss your problem write to ASK HENRY, in care of this newspaper.

Dear Henry:

I live on a very small hill and I would like a bike. But my mother says no and my father has been saying maybe for a long, long time. Most of my friends have a bike. What do you think I should do?

Dear Kath:

CAMPAIGN HINTS: Lesson I (If it doesn't work out, write for Lesson II).

1—Since your father says maybe, work on your father.

2—Keep the newspapers, slippers, and pipe ready when he settles in his chair.

3—When you think he is really happy and comfortable...

4—START NAGGING.

5—Repeat 2, 3 and 4 seven times a week.

6—AND EVERY WEEK UNTIL YOU GET YOUR BIKE.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

Names do hurt, Henry, particularly if they are jeering, disparaging contemptuous and the like. They can hurt as much as a broken bone and do a lot more harm to the spirit and character of a child.

But there is a quick way to stop a name caller. Just call him the same name he calls you. If he calls you "Flabby," you call him "Flabby." He will stop mighty soon.

A FRIEND

Dear Friend:

Thanks a lot for your comment. You are right in part. If a much younger child calls "Flabby" to another, it doesn't matter, she can ignore it. If an older one calls "Flabby" to her, she will be hurt and she should yell back something suitable like: Flabby, Knuckle-head, Lamebrain, and I would rather not mention the others.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

I was an only child and I don't think I really understand my children fighting all the time. One boy is 9 years old and the other is 6. The older boy annoys the younger one until the 6-year-old hits the 9-year-old. This seems to be an excuse for the older one to haul off and hurt the younger one.

I think it might be a sign of something seriously wrong between the two boys. What should I do?

SINCERELY AND PERPLEXED

Dear Sincerely:

Don't worry. Your kids are kids. To stop the shooting you can try my dad's method. Warn your cowboys in advance that if any shooting starts, the oldest will be always blamed for the trouble, and will be convicted without trial. The older will then find that fighting doesn't pay and will be beating up his brother less frequently.

HENRY

Dear Henry:

I am 10 years old. My parents always make me do dishes and clean up the kitchen while they just loaf around the house. I dislike this very much and I would like to know what I can do about it.

DISTURBED

You can DO the dishes and kitchen about it. The parent is the boss, I am afraid.

POST GRADUATE?

Unable to solve a certain problem mathematically, a young man attempted to approximate the actual conditions and measure the results by hand.

On a level stretch of land he erected two posts: One, six feet high; the other, four feet high. From the top of each post to the base of the other he fastened a wire. Distance between bases was 10 feet.

Now, the question the young man sought to answer was this: How high from the level ground was the point of intersection of the two wires? Can you answer? If so, ponder this: How much higher or lower would this point of intersection have been if a distance of five feet was added between posts?

IT'S YOUR MOVE

Improve your checker game by solving this problem. White, moving up the board, to move and win in four moves is the challenge. How's it done?

A TIDAL WAVE OF HOPE

MR. KRUSHCHEV is 67. He plans to see the Red Flag flying over every country in the world during his lifetime. He thinks he can do it. Every decision and action he takes over Berlin, Laos, the Congo or at the United Nations is measured against this one aim.

He has an ideology.

Nations outside the Communist bloc lack any common ideology or world aim. They are divided amongst themselves. They think that if they stand up to Mr. Krushchev they may be forced into atomic war.

Appeasement is no answer to dictatorship. The idealism of the United Nations without an ideology often becomes the tool for Moscow's aim. Making big speeches to satisfy public opinion at home and backing them by weak action when we meet the Communists at the conference table destroys the faith of the millions in the power of the democratic way of life. Squatting in the streets, however sincere, is no answer to the threat of the H-bomb.

The answer is to stand up and fight in every nation, everywhere, for an ideology that changes Communist and non-Communist alike and unites every race, class and color in the supreme task of the century — the remaking of the world.

Men with an ideology superior to Communism can not only stand up to Mr. Krushchev but enlist him in a greater revolution.

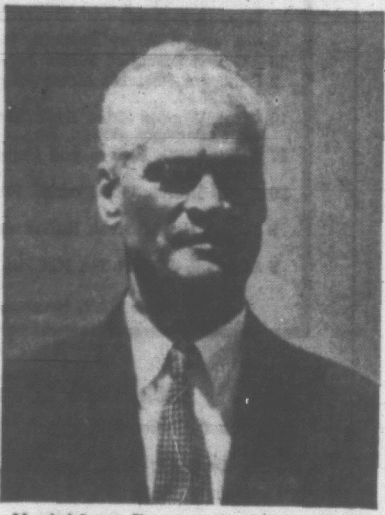

General Carpentier of France, who was in command of the land forces of NATO for Central Europe, and who had the training of the Brazilian Army and commanded the French forces in Indo-China and elsewhere, put the issue clearly at the World Assembly at Caux this year when he said, "We need a tidal wave of Moral Re-Armament to sweep across the world. Then men in Government will be forced to make the right decisions that spring not only from the intellect, but from our hearts and faith."

"THE TIDE OF COMMUNISM CAN BE TURNED"

This tidal wave is flooding across the continents. Marshal Tavora, national hero of Brazil, flew last week to Rome. There he told leaders of the Church and State, "With Moral Re-Armament the tide of Communism in my country and Latin America can be turned."

His colleague General Bethlem, former Brazilian Ambassador in Bolivia and Pakistan, on that same day was meeting in Los Angeles with Mr. Kishi, Prime Minister of Japan until last year. Both General Bethlem and Mr. Kishi had been at Caux two weeks before. The General said, "In Brazil and Peru 900,000 of my countrymen have seen the Japanese play The Tiger in the last five months. Millions more have seen it on television. Its message has already saved Brazil from civil war."

He was referring to a play by the revolutionary students of the Zengakuren of Japan. These students led the riots in Tokyo last year which caused President Eisenhower's visit to Japan to be cancelled. The students changed. They wrote a play describing how Communism had captured them through their own moral compromise and how Moral Re-Armament had taught them to go not right, not left, but straight. Then they went to America and apologized to Eisenhower. He urged them to go to Latin America.

Marshal Juarez Tavora, national hero of Brazil

In Manaus, a Communist stronghold of Brazil, a thousand miles up the Amazon River, 90,000 people in one night saw a presentation of The Tiger in the football stadium. On the same night the Communist counter-rally across the road, for the anniversary of Castro's Cuban Revolution, drew a total of forty people. One of the students said, "It is the greatest event that has ever taken place in Manaus. It has revolutionized our thinking."

"THE ONLY ANSWER TO THE CRISIS IN BERLIN"

Mr. Kishi, speaking with General Bethlem in Los Angeles, told how he had discussed with General Eisenhower last week at Gettysburg the impact of the work of Moral Re-Armament throughout the South American continent. He said, "I apologized to General Eisenhower for last year's riots and invited him to come as soon as possible to Japan. I had two objectives in making my present journey around the world. The first was to attend the Moral Re-Armament Assembly at Caux. This Assembly made an impression on me that is both deep and unforgettable. Secondly, I wanted to meet again the world statesmen I had known as Prime Minister. The only answer to the crisis in Berlin and the challenge of Communism today is the ideology of Moral Re-Armament. Nations today must form a solid front, a unity of purpose and of spirit so evident to the Communist world that they will not indulge in miscalculation nor misunderstand our aim and goal. MRA is producing this unity which transcends all national boundaries and all minor divisions."

In September Mr. Saburo Chiba, for three years Chairman of the National Security Committee of the Japanese Diet, flew straight from Caux to confer with President Prado of Peru. He said that his own experience as head of Security had led him to two conclusions on how to answer Communism: (1) To impact the masses with a more effective ideology and (2) To unite the countries of the free world in a common strategy.

He told the President that no exclusively national plan is adequate today. While the thirteen Communist bloc countries are united in one global strategy, eighty-two nations have not yet reached a common mind and goal. "In order to create a united force in the free world," he continued, "we must create a united force of parliamentarians from every nation. This is already being done in many of the free countries."

Former Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan

"TO SAVE DEMOCRACY IN PERU"

President Prado invited Moral Re-Armament to his country "to save democracy in Peru." At the National Stadium in Lima 60,000 people stood in silence for a minute to honour the memory of Frank Buchman, initiator of Moral Re-Armament, before seeing a performance of The Tiger. Ten thousand who could not get in listened over the loudspeakers outside.

A force of these Japanese students went to San Marcos University. This is the University which organized the stoning of Vice-President Nixon when he visited Peru. Speaking on the Peruvian National Radio after meeting the Japanese, one of these student leaders said, "Five days ago we had riots. Moral Re-Armament has made us understand that the divisions which exist between political groups arise because each group is out for itself. MRA has come at the right moment to Peru."

Another student leader said on the National Radio: "In this atomic age man must give the answer to exploitation by either Communism or capitalism. Here is an ideology which rebuilds the chaotic world today, which gives food to the hungry, work to the unemployed, and fills the empty spirit of man which has been lost in immorality and corruption."

This week in Peru 40,000 people, including thousands of Indians in colorful dress, thronged to the great Sacayhuaman fortress, stronghold of the ancient Inca civilization, now known as the Moscow of Peru, to see The Tiger and hear it in the original Inca language. The head of Indian affairs said: "Your philosophy is going to change the face of the earth bringing justice, bread and an answer."

The Moral Re-Armament force, in Latin America is moving from Brazil and Peru to Chile, Bolivia, Uruguay, and other countries of that continent.

IDEOLOGICAL OFFENSIVE IN EUROPE

At the same time a force of 400 from 36 nations is sweeping through countries of Europe in an ideological offensive to answer defeatism, Communism and division. Among them are fifty Chinese from Taiwan headed by General Ho Ying-chin, former Prime Minister of China and wartime Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese armies, who received the Japanese sword of surrender in World War II. General Ho Ying-chin said, "We lost the mainland of China because we lacked an ideology. The materialism in our own life was exploited by the Communists to take over China. We sacrificed our country for our selfishness. I have been more than thirty years a soldier, and I say that the way to secure peace and freedom for the world is Moral Re-Armament."

These fifty Chinese have put their burning convictions into a play called The Dragon, which shows the tragedy of a nation lost through the selfishness of men and gives the hope of an answer.

One of the leading industrialists of Europe, after seeing The Dragon, said, "Nobody who sees this play can be the same again. What I like most about Moral Re-Armament is that it challenges the rich, as it does everybody, to change their whole motive of life."

The former Comintern delegate, Hans Bjerkholt, co-founder of the Norwegian Communist Party, spoke last week to 22,000 people at a mass demonstration with the Chinese play, The Dragon, in the football stadium at Lucerne. "We are at the most serious point in the history of mankind," he said, "when the leaders of the West start to waver before Krushchev, our task is to move the masses and give them courage to stand firm. MRA is the superior ideology that has the power to unite East and West. It is the next step forward for Communist and non-Communist alike."

Gabriel Marcel, the French philosopher and playwright, said at Lucerne, "Moral Re-Armament is an immense effort to create a new living fabric of humanity right across the world. In France today more and more men are responding to this road."

Vaterland, Swiss Catholic newspaper, wrote of The Dragon, "Thus far the Chinese have been the main agents of world Communism on many fronts in Africa and South America. Now for the first time in the history of the ideological struggle representatives of Free China have appeared on the scene, blazing a trail with their message. We were literally shaken as the play unfolded before our eyes — a play that ends with a brilliant finale as men realize that the power of the ideology of Moral Re-Armament can usher in a new and better age. We made our way home with a great hope in our hearts."

The Moral Re-Armament force and the Chinese are being greeted by crowds of thousands night after night who say that in their message they see hope for peace in the world and the unity of Europe. Civic leaders of Berlin are among those who have invited this force to their city. They believe that the root problem is not a wall that divides a city or a continent but the steely selfishness that separates man from man and all men from the government of God.

Many African countries have invited the forces of Moral Re-Armament to come immediately to their continent. President Kasavubu sent his wife and son as leaders of the Congolese delegation to Caux last month. Speaking on behalf of the delegation, Adolphe Kasavubu, the son of the President, said, "The Congo is at the centre of Africa. If the Congo goes Communist, all Africa will follow. It is not enough to give dollars to underdeveloped countries. We must win the hearts of the people. What we need is an ideology. That ideology is Moral Re-Armament." He told more than a thousand delegates from every part of the world that in the last twelve months 483 radio broadcasts about Moral Re-Armament have gone out in five Congolese languages to all parts of his country on the National Radio.

"MORAL RE-ARMAMENT OR FINAL ANNIHILATION"

U Nu, Prime Minister of Burma, brought a delegation of his countrymen to Caux last month. On leaving he said, "Moral Re-Armament must go on for ever if we want to prevent mankind from plunging into final annihilation. If we want to stop Communism taking hold of the world, we must deal with corruption, bribery, drink, and womanizing. If we want to change corrupt people we must be honest ourselves. That is what impresses me very much at Caux. With this ideology you are bound to succeed."

Rajmohan Gandhi, grandson of the Mahatma, said at Caux, "The issue for the world is not Communism or war, but whether statesmen will undertake the Moral Re-Armament of the Communist and non-Communist worlds. We must go to Washington and Moscow with an ideology that changes men. That is the next step for the Communist and non-Communist alike. Unless we change human nature we can never fulfil the aspirations of the millions in our countries."

An Asian centre for Moral Re-Armament will open next spring near Tokyo to match the centres at Caux and Mackinac. An Assembly for the Americas is being held in Rio de Janeiro next month. Over Christmas and New Year there will be a Pan-African Assembly for Moral Re-Armament at the heart of Africa.

Mr. Krushchev wants to see a different kind of world. Every honest person knows he is right in the conviction that change is needed, however much we disagree with his way of doing it. The leaders of the free world have in Moral Re-Armament an ideology superior to Communism to offer him. Even the most difficult will respond to the firm, united but humble voice of democratic nations morally rearmed. Why should there be catastrophe again when with God renaissance is inevitable?

It is not a matter of left or right; it is a matter of right or wrong.

Communism gave its philosophy to the world last Christmas over the Moscow Radio when it said: "Our rocket has by-passed the moon. It is nearing the sun and we have not discovered God. We have turned lights out in heaven that no man will be able to put on again. We are breaking the yoke of the Gospel, the opium of the masses. Let us go forth and Christ shall be relegated to mythology."

Frank Buchman, in his last words, gave a challenge to the modern world on the sixth of August in Freudenstadt when he said, "I want the world to be governed by men governed by God. Why not let God run the whole world?"

It is the hour for heroic decision and emboldened leadership.

Choose ye this day whom ye will serve.

On July 1st, 45,000 jammed the stadium at Recife for a Moral Re-Armament demonstration, the largest gathering in the history of this key seaport of Northeast Brazil. The demonstration took place just three weeks after tanks and troops were rushed there to quell rioting students in the city streets.

Canadians determined to turn the tide in our nation and in the world are contributing to publish this page. This sacrificial giving by patriots in each country makes possible the world wide advance of Moral Re-Armament. You can play a part. Cheques made out to Moral Re-Armament are tax deductible. Send your contribution to Moral Re-Armament, Room 201, 749 Yonge Street, Toronto 5, Ontario, and Box 205, Station L, Montreal 6, Quebec. ## FUN, FROLIC—AND A WARNING FINGER

Deadly serious purpose of Fire Prevention Week was hidden behind facade of fun and frolic at Belmont Park naval fire station this morning. Last day of annual "week" was marked by parade of decorated bikes, trikes and doll buggies—but most of all by open house at station, where scores of youngsters swarmed over fire equipment, inhaled free pop and sandwiches, and, without knowing it, absorbed the lesson that fires just don't start themselves—they need "help" of human carelessness.

Liberals Overwhelm Groos In Support of Tax Cuts

Former Esquimalt-Saanich by-election candidate David Groos shocked Liberal delegates Friday when he rebelled against policy of cutting income tax.

Mr. Groos, who almost pulled a stunning upset when he came within 500 votes of winning the federal seat last May, lost again Friday.

The convention overwhelmed his protest and approved an economic policy which included temporary tax cuts on personal income, lowering of interest rates and tariff barriers plus a brake on foreign investment in Canada.

Mr. Groos started delegates when he said the section on income tax cuts "smacks of buying votes and irresponsibility."

Peggy Gibbs, widow of former Oak Bay MLA P. A.

DAVID GROOS... fights policy

Gibbs, defended the tax-cut policy.

"Tax reductions in hard times and increases in good times makes good sense," she said.

It meant that money was spread evenly among all taxpayers when they most needed it.

The section on curbing foreign capital was toned down. Originally it was aimed to "reduce the inflow of American capital." This was amended to "offset the flow of foreign capital," after delegates maintained that U.S. investment was very important to Canada.

Other trade resolutions calling for a national "sales force" to promote Canadian goods abroad and for an Atlantic Community Market were also approved.

Municipalities 'Going Broke' On Education

A royal commission on education financing and a plea for all-Canadian textbooks were approved by B.C. Liberals at their Empress Hotel convention Friday.

Victoria and Vancouver delegates agreed that unless there is a new approach to school finance municipalities "are going broke."

The policy adopted was that there is no longer "any rational basis" for financing education through property and improvement taxes. The system is "inequitable, inadequate, inefficient and antiquated" said a resolution approved by delegates.

A Liberal government would set up a royal commission to work out a new formula which would still maintain local school board autonomy.

The textbook issue sparked an unexpected flurry as one delegate charged that works written, edited and published only by Canadians would lead to "narrow-mindedness, provincialism and censorship."

Ralph Brown of Point Grey said textbooks should be written "by experts" rather than Canadians, even if that meant American experts.

A bid to delete a resolution clause which said textbooks should be written by Canadians was defeated.

The majority of delegates felt that school books, like the CBC, should reflect "a Canadian voice." The resolution singled out social studies texts as a cause of particular concern.

Youth Loses Hand In Explosion

A homemade bomb exploded in the face of a Central Saanich youth Friday afternoon, blowing his hand off.

In "satisfactory" condition at Rest Haven Hospital is 17-year old Alan Bompas, 1932 Mount Newton Cross Road, who was attempting to crimp down the end of an explosive-filled pipe when the bomb exploded.

The mishap occurred at 4:30 p.m. The youth said later he had filled the pipe with "a mixture of potassium chlorate, sulphur and charcoal" after bending one end closed in a vice.

"I was pounding the other end closed with a hammer. There must have been enough heat from the blows to ignite the powder."

The Grade 11 student is keenly interested in chemistry and said he had experimented with explosives "many times" in the past.

Alone in the house at the time, he ran down the road for help and was taken to hospital by Central Saanich ambulance.

The eldest of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bompas, he was permitted to stay home from school Friday because of an attack of flu.

At the time of the accident the other children were on their way home from school. Mrs. Bompas was in town on business and his father was still at work.

Four Driving Charges Admitted by Sailor

Hiring Clause Facing Second Look

A rampage by a young driver resulted in over $1,500 damage to four cars at midnight Friday.

In city police court today Reggie Clark Douglas, HMCS St. Laurent, pleaded guilty to two charges of careless driving and two of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Magistrate William Ostler, referring to the incident as a "disgraceful state of affairs," imposed fines of $40 and $50, and jail terms of 16 and 14 days respectively, all to run consecutively.

IMPAIRED

Also in court was a shipmate of Douglas', Robert W. Anderson, who pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving after being involved with Douglas in one of the accidents.

Mr. Ostler also suspended both men's licences and prohibited them from driving anywhere in Canada for two years.

"It is quite obvious you are both unsuitable for driving," he said.

HIT PARKED CAR

Police said the Douglas car had been pushed by Anderson in another auto for more than a mile and was on Collision approaching the "T" junction with Trutch about 11:55 p.m. when Douglas failed to make the turn and crashed into a parked car owned by William Innis, 601 Trutch.

Anderson told police he had been doing "about 25 to 30" and the force of the impact drove Innis' car onto the curb forcing tires off the wheels in the process.

DROVE OFF

By this time Douglas had managed to start his engine, back away from the wreck and drive down Trutch.

Three minutes later the Douglas car ran a red light at Fairfield and Cook and collided with a car driven by Carl O. Gustafson, 1221 Johnson.

He again left the scene and returned to his ship where he was taken into custody by the Naval Shore Patrol after being traced through his licence number.

TOWED AWAY

Douglas' car suffered only $200 damage but all of the other three were towed away by wreckers.

Damage to the Innis vehicle was estimated at $600, to the Gustafson car about $350 and $200 to the Anderson auto.

Youths Make Leap From Stolen Car In Oak Bay

Oak Bay police are seeking two youths who leaped from a stolen car early today while it was still moving.

Police said a car owned by D'Arcy Bridgeman was taken from outside 1021 Craigdarroch some time before 1:55 a.m. and driven into Oak Bay.

On Oliver the youths apparently spotted a prowler car and jumped from the vehicle. The car went out of control and sideswiped a telephone pole before crashing into a parked car owned by E. J. Lewis, 1446 Oliver.

Total damage to both cars was estimated at $800.

Fresh Breeze Is Blowing!

It's amazing that three men had the urge to pour so much into a personal quest for a political "joe job" that they turned the Liberal convention into a free-wheeling Yankee presidential-style rally.

Presidency of any political party is usually strictly a backroom job. Liberals in the past had to scratch for a person to take it on.

Yet this weekend Hugh Martin, Bill Gilmour and Jack Taggart swooped on the Empress, each determined to make a big thing out of being president.

In their anxiety to please they even set up a lobby-long bar outside the Crystal Ballroom Friday night, and the behind-scenes vote-hunting was something terrific.

Mr. Taggart, most restrained of the trio, leans more to the old theory that presidents should be neither seen nor heard—publicly.

But Mr. Martin has offered $100,000 to help rebuild the party and he certainly pulled out all the stops.

Some Liberals feel that perhaps it is a good thing to change from the smoke-filled room to the public podium. A hard-hitting president could be just what the party needs to regain power in B.C., they say.

Even if the convention did nothing else, by the time the pretty girls, the free apples, the buttons, stickers and handouts were cleared away, it had won more publicity than its organizers dreamed of.

Critics of the new vinyl tiles in the Buildings corridors may have the last laugh. Works Minister W. N. Chant says the tiles rise when subjected to heat.

Watch out for historian James K. Nesbitt poking around the steam radiators this winter for some evidence.

People who want to see Premier Bennett will now get "split-T" treatment.

His suite at the Buildings has been enlarged to include a fourth room.

First you enter a receptionist's office (she's new); then you're passed through a secretaries' office, later called across an ante-room, and finally enter the end-zone.

Mr. Bennett will soon announce his new personal aide, to replace executive assistant Dan Ekman, who quit recently.

Mr. Douglas had a family of seven children, four still surviving. His eldest son is 71 and works his own farm in Alberta.

One of their daughters, Mrs. R. Dreger, has come to Victoria from Phoenix, Arizona, and is giving her parents a little party at her hotel. The family relatives in Victoria will then go out to dinner at the Princess Mary to celebrate the anniversary.

Among the messages and gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas congratulating them on their long and happy marriage were a letter and a bouquet of flowers from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, VC.

Still spry, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas remain in remarkable health. Mrs. Douglas has never been in a hospital a night of her life. She bore all seven children at home.

And the secret to a long and happy marriage?

Mr. Douglas says: "If your wife lets you think you're the boss, and you let your wife think she's the boss, then everything will work out just fine."

MR. and MRS. FRED DOUGLAS... they've got a secret

ALL BECAUSE OF A LITTLE WALK

Wed 72 Years, But No One Is 'Boss'

Two people who fell in love at first sight are today celebrating their 72nd wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Douglas first met when they were working in an English mill in 1887.

"I asked Mary Ann if she would go for a walk with me and she consented," said Mr. Douglas. "But we had not gone too far when she slipped and fell through a sharp hedge, ripping her dress. It was love at first sight," he chuckled.

They were married in New York in 1889 and returned to England where they lived for 12 years before coming to North America in 1902.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas, 90 and 92 respectively, are now living in Victoria with their daughter, Mrs. George Simpson, at 414 Superior Street.

They plan to spend their declining years in the city of flowers and "take it easy and not worry."

They have spent the last 20 years in the Okanagan Valley, and worked their farm up until two months ago. A farmer all his life, Fred Douglas has never owned a motor car.

The Douglas' had a family of seven children, four still surviving. Their eldest son is 71 and works his own farm in Alberta.

One of their daughters, Mrs. R. Dreger, has come to Victoria from Phoenix, Arizona, and is giving her parents a little party at her hotel. The family relatives in Victoria will then go out to dinner at the Princess Mary to celebrate the anniversary.

Among the messages and gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas congratulating them on their long and happy marriage were a letter and a bouquet of flowers from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, VC.

Still spry, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas remain in remarkable health. Mrs. Douglas has never been in a hospital a night of her life. She bore all seven children at home.

And the secret to a long and happy marriage?

Mr. Douglas says: "If your wife lets you think you're the boss, and you let your wife think she's the boss, then everything will work out just fine."

Grits Reject Mental Health Plan

B.C. Liberals Friday threw out a resolution for immediate implementation of the Ross report on mental health after a doctor told them it would be a disaster.

Dr. Pat McGeer, who does brain research at the University of B.C., said Canadian experts have refused to endorse the report, made for the Social Credit government by Dr. Mathew Ross and the American Psychiatric Association.

The resolution was referred back to the resolutions committee with a strong recommendation that it be rejected. It said the recommendations of the report should immediately be put into effect "in order that the shocking deterioration in our mental health services be halted."

REFUSE ENDORSEMENT

"It would be a disaster for B.C. if the recommendations were instituted," said Dr. McGeer, a nephew of the late Senator Gerry McGeer.

"Canadian bodies have dissociated themselves from this report."

He said the Canadian Mental Health Association refused to endorse it, and so had the psychiatric experts at UBC.

The professor of psychiatry there has said it would be disastrous to implement the report, said Dr. McGeer.

His main criticism of the report—presented by the B.C. government after the last full legislative session—was that it put too much emphasis on "monolithic institutions."

NEW TREATMENT
The report recommends a huge R.C. building program, which Dr. McGeer said would perpetuate the practice of shutting people away.

Instead, the Canadian experts advocate a new program of mental health care and treatment at the local, community level. This would keep patients in an attractive environment among people they know.

Dr. McGeer also questioned the fact that present facilities are shocking.

Much can be done in the field, he said, but "we would have a hard time documenting the fact that there has been a shocking deterioration."

LACK OF CONFIDENCE

One-third of B.C.'s civil service is connected with mental health and such a statement would indicate a lack of confidence in a large group of genuinely dedicated men and women.

Doug McK. Brown, a member of the resolutions committee which initially approved the policy proposal, said it now appeared the resolution was "dangerous."

"We have heard the warning sounded by Dr. McGeer—we ought to heed it. I will not vote for it now," he said.

A TEACHING MISSION at First United Church from Oct. 22 to 29, will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Stanley Brice Frost. He is dean of the faculty of divinity at McGill University and president of the Montreal Theological Society. He is also a regular contributor to theological journals.

CEREMONY FOR BONES OF 849

Chinese Burial Planned

A traditional Chinese burial ceremony will be carried out Sunday at the Chinese Cemetery on Penzance Road, Oak Bay, where the bones of 849 Chinese are to be interred in a mass grave.

The ceremony will start at 2.30 p.m.

The bones, gathered from across Canada more than 25 years ago for shipment to Hong Kong, were stored in a vault in the Chinese Cemetery and held here during the Second World War. They would have been shipped to China later but the new Communist regime refused to accept them.

Before the war, it was the practice for the Chinese to bury their dead here. After eight years the bones were interred and returned to China for burial in ancestral cemeteries.

But this practice was discontinued after the Communists seized power on the mainland of China.

The remains of the dead to be buried Sunday were kept in boxes in a vault. On a number of occasions vandals have broken in and scattered the bones.

Sunday's ceremony has never been held in Canada before and is not likely to occur again because Chinese burial practices have changed during the past 45 years.

Parking
New Problem
For Churches

TORONTO (CP)—Parking lots may be essential in future church planning in urban areas, says a Toronto church organization.

A 20-year development plan prepared by the Toronto Association of Baptist Churches recommends that church sites be no smaller than three acres and include space for parking.

A 14-member committee including legal, building, real estate and local government experts, as well as three ministers, spent two years preparing the report.

It says new congregations cannot be expected to finance their own buildings and church programs without outside assistance. It recommends establishment of a fund to provide each new congregation with about $70,000.

Much of the development can be financed through profits on land deals if churches have the foresight to make long-term real estate investments, it says.

Task groups from neighboring parishes should be drafted into new areas to provide interim leadership until new congregations are able to stand on their own.

It suggested downtown churches serving dwindling populations be closed and that attention be turned to strengthening newer suburban congregations.

Women

Victoria Daily Times SAT., OCT. 14, 1961 21

Miss Ruth Adams, president of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will preside at a number of special events arranged to mark this year's Business Women's Week. Program starts with attendance at church service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, followed by a luncheon at 1 p.m. in the banquet room at the Tally-Ho Motel.

Mrs. D. S. (Florence) Barlow, at left, a member of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club is in charge of arrangements for the Sunday luncheon at Tally-Ho Motel. Mrs. J. W. (Velma) Larson represents chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority on the committee.

Six other women's groups in Victoria join with Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club in observance of Business Women's Week. Representatives of five of these organizations, pictured above, are from the left: Miss Emma Gower, president of the Business Women's Christian Fellowship; Miss Muriel Knight, University Women's Club of Victoria; Miss Jessie Duff, president, Credit Women's Breakfast Club; Mrs. Nan Poh, president, Soroptimist Club of Victoria, and Miss Marion Bolingbroke, president of the Altrusa Club.

Business Women's Week

To focus attention on the achievements of women in business, trades and the professions and on the part many of these women are playing in the economic, cultural and public life of Canada, the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs sponsors, each year, a national Business Women's Week. The Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, in conjunction with more than 170 BPW clubs across Canada, will observe the week with a special program of events commencing Sunday, Oct. 15, and continuing until Oct. 21.

Mrs. S. E. (Vera) Wade, first vice-president of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, is chairman of program arrangements for Business Women's Week in Victoria.

Mrs. M. H. (Marg) Benbow, at left, is in charge of publicity for the week and Mrs. A. H. (Agnes) Phipps is secretary. Both are members of Victoria BPW Club.

Business Women's Week Nation-Wide

Prime Minister Sends A Message

Prime Minister Diefenbaker observes Business Women's Week in the following message to Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs issued at Ottawa today:

HON. J. G. DIEFENBAKER

"In observing Business Women's Week, you are reminding Canadians of the increasingly important role women are taking in the business, professional and public life of this nation. The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs has helped to create an awareness of the benefits of society through greater scope for women. Indeed, today the number of women employed in Canada is greater than ever before."

"The Federation has been a powerful force in the campaign to remove discrimination against women in business and professions and contributed much to the enactment of the Bill of Rights, which specifically provides that there shall be no discrimination because of sex."

only during Business Women's Week, but throughout the year. "J. G. Diefenbaker, Prime Minister."

National President

Miss Una MacLean, Calgary, national president of Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in a message released today for Business Women's Week, points to new projects started in the past year and aimed to continue the work of bettering conditions for women. She says:

MISS UNA MACLEAN

"The role of women is becoming increasingly important in the overall economy of Canada. To help Canadian women to discharge their growing responsibilities more effectively, the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs has launched several important projects."

"Among these is a Canada-wide study of inheritance laws as they affect the status of women. The study is being conducted by the legislative committee of the federation."

"Also projected is a three-part study by the employment conditions committee of our 7,000-member body. First of these is a survey among members of the federation of the implementation of equal pay legislation and the extent to which pension and retirement benefits are provided. Secondly, the 170 Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Canada will undertake 'Career Preview' programs in their communities. These will provide counselling to girls in high school and pre-high school level and assist them with information pertinent to the career they may choose to follow. It is hoped that the program will encourage young girls to take full advantage of educational opportunities available to them in view of the steadily rising demand for qualified personnel. The third phase of the employment program is continuation of the campaign to eliminate differentials paid men and women under minimum wage laws in provinces where such discrepancies still exist."

"These and other continuing programs are among the efforts of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to enhance and improve the status of women in Canada. Business Women's Week, being nationally observed Oct. 16-21, will draw attention to the contribution Canadian women have made and are making in all fields of endeavor related to Canada's development."

Women In Public Life Increase With Each Year

Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs publishes annually a survey of women in public life. Each year the list grows longer and more impressive.

There are now seven women senators in Canada, a federal cabinet minister and women members of parliament as well as women representatives in provincial legislatures.

Women hold responsible positions on boards, commissions and city councils. Recently another milestone in the uprepping of the status of women was passed when the Bank of Nova Scotia, the first time in banking history, named two women as bank managers, one in Ottawa and the other in Toronto.

Today, women comprise more than one-quarter of the labor force in Canada. This increase in numbers of gainfully employed women gives them the right to take an ever-increasing part in the public life of their cities, towns and communities.

Business Women's Week is planned to place emphasis on the growing responsibility of the community to its gainfully employed women and of the need to create conditions in which these women can take their rightful place in every phase of life in Canada.

Thirty-one years ago, in the city of Winnipeg, representative business women of five cities — Montreal, Saskatoon, Vancouver, Victoria and Winnipeg, met and formed the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. From this small beginning the federation has grown to more than 170 clubs in every province in Canada.

Business Women's Week is being celebrated this year, by clubs in Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs across Canada, from Sunday until October 21. There is "More Power With Women Power."

The week is designed to demonstrate the contribution of gainfully employed women as producers, consumers, taxpayers and public spirited citizens.

Its aim is to develop interest in each town, city and community in Canada, in offering conditions in which such women can achieve fuller recognition and greater opportunities in public life.

Premiers of the various provinces have given the week a send-off with letters of approval and in opening speeches. Civic proclamations have been made in many towns and cities.

There will be church parades, emblem breakfasts, creed luncheons and special events during the week, all planned to focus attention on the working woman.

In many communities other women's organizations have joined with the business and professional women's clubs, to present a united front during this important week.

Clubs in Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs have worked tirelessly to better conditions for the employed woman.

In the 31 years since the federation was organized, they have been instrumental in having women appointed to the Senate; qualified women named to policy making administrative and judicial commissions and boards and to positions in government at federal, provincial and municipal levels.

The federation has done much to bring about equal pay for equal work in seven of the 10 provinces; to place women on juries; to seek the repeal of policies and laws that discriminate against women and to support the United Nations in its work to improve the status of women.

Coupled with Business Women's Week this year, is the federation's drive for new members, which is planned around an "Open House" gathering sponsored by individual clubs, where gainfully employed women in all branches of work, will be invited to attend as guests and to learn something of the aims and objectives of the federation.

Many clubs across Canada have included this "Open House" meeting in their Business Women's Week program.

Dr. J. I. W. McLean will preach the sermon.

After church there will be a luncheon at 1 p.m. in the Tally Ho Motel banquet hall, where Rev. Laura Butler will be guest speaker.

She will take as her subject the theme of the week, "More Power With Women Power."

Grace will be said by Miss Emma Gower, president of the Business Women's Christian Fellowship. Mayor Percy B. Scurrell will bring greetings from the city, and a solo will be given by Mrs. Marjorie Sturgeon accompanied by Miss Marjory Vaughan.

Others taking part on the program will be Mrs. Marguerite Laughlin, national chairman of Business Women's Week; Miss Elizabeth Forbes, national vice-president of Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Miss Ruth Adams, Victoria BPW Club president, and Mrs. Margaret Benbow.

Monday evening's regular meeting of Victoria BPW Club will start at 7:30 p.m., and adjourn at 8:30 p.m. for a social evening planned to honor members of other women's groups who have joined in observing the special week. Gathering will be in the clubroom at War Amps Hall. A collection will be taken for the Retarded Children's Fund of Victoria.

Color slides of her visit to Switzerland and other places in Europe will be shown by Mrs. H. G. Ellis, and refreshments will be served.

On Friday evening an "open house" reception will be held by Victoria BPW Club in the War Amps Hall at which prospective members and any gainfully employed woman wishing to know more about the aims and objectives of business and professional women's clubs and the national federation will be welcomed.

Members of the two-year-old Sidney Business and Professional Women's Club, headed by the president, Mrs. Betty Harker, will join with the Victoria club at all events.

CAC Works For Consumer

Do you know that at the present time there is no standard for "Minced Beef" in the Food and Drug Regulations?

The standard for Hamburg states that "Hamburg (Hamburg Steak) shall be comminuted beef, and shall contain not more than 30 per cent fat which shall be comprised of the fat normally adherent to the beef used." Hamburg must contain only beef, and it should be pointed out that there is no difference between "Hamburg" and "Hamburg Steak" in the Food and Drug Regulations.

A survey conducted recently by the Food and Drug Directorate, in co-operation with the Canadian Association of Consumers and others, shows that the majority of the consumers questioned think that Hamburg is a cheaper product containing higher fat content and poorer cuts of meat than so-called "Minced Beef," but at present this may not be so.

DEAR ABBY

You're Partners, Gal!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You may not believe this, but I have been married to a man for 34 years, and I still have never seen his white-collar job. Nor have I seen any of his insurance policies, but I know he carries lots of insurance. I have no idea how much money he has in the bank, nor do I know if the mortgage on our house is paid. My monthly allowance is so small I am ashamed to tell you what it is. We have never had a vacation. He says we can't afford it. We are not getting any younger. I think I should have a complete understanding of our financial affairs. He says it is none of my business. It's his money. How can I change things?

WAR HORSE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: After 34 years of silence, it would be pretty difficult to teach an old war horse new tricks. Ask him if he wants to bring you up-to-date on the family finances, or would he rather you asked his banker, lawyer and insurance agent? You are his partner, you know.

DEAR ABBY: I know you are going to say that this is just puppy love, but, believe me, it is not. I may be only 14 years old, but I know this is the real thing. Peter is 16, and he feels the same way about it. Our parents laugh at us when we say we are in love, and want to get married when we are through school. We have gone together for four months, two weeks and three days. How can we prove to the world that this is really love?

J AND J

DEAR J AND J: Go with each other for another FIVE YEARS.

DEAR ABBY: We are two high school graduates who are interested in becoming airline hostesses. We want to know if an airline hostess is allowed to wear glasses? Do their teeth have to be perfectly straight? What about height and weight? Can you help us?

FUTURE HOSTESSES WE HOPE

DEAR FUTURE: Write to the personnel director of the airline in which you are interested. Each company has its own prerequisites.

DEAR ABBY: Have you a little space in your column for a tip that might save some body's life or home? Tell women that if the grease should catch fire while frying or making doughnuts, a few big handfuls of flour or cornmeal will smother it fast. I put out a fire that way last week, and the blaze was two feet high. Thank you.

Before the cutting of an anniversary cake by the guests of honor, a history of their marriage was read by Mrs. J. G. Martin. Among those invited were Mr. and Mrs. R. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. J. Chatfield, Mr. and Mrs. F. Grevett, Mr. and Mrs. W. McMichael, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. F. Yee, Mrs. R. Bird, Mrs. A. Marr, Mrs. I. Webster and Miss Diane Bird.

Good Furs Are a Fine Investment

The first furs of the autumn season are the shoulder-covering stoles and little jackets—just right for Indian summer weather when there is only a suggestion of frost in the air.

It is inevitable, however, that winter will catch up with us and a little more coat will be most welcome.

No longer is there any need to worry about a three-quarter or full-length fur coat being too heavy for our climate. The coats that are designed for the western market are much lighter and have greater fashion detail than in years past.

It is now possible to manipulate fur as if it were fabric, giving a woman the luxury without the bulkiness and weight.

In Canada, fur fashions this season are exploring a new feeling for color and a new sense of lightness and fluidity in styling compatible with a fur which is just coming into the Canadian market. This is Nutria, now being ranch-raised in mutation colors of pure white, off-white, grey, gold and black.

Its characteristics of light weight (a full-length coat is less than 5 pounds) and pliability is possible because only the skin from the front of the animal is used. And its resistance to water and matting make it exceptionally good.

There is a growing market for fur pelts which are easily manipulated and therefore a great possibility that the pop-

Wedding Vows Exchanged In Douglas Baptist Church

Dahlias and chrysanthemums decorated Douglas Street Baptist Church when Marjorie Irene Mearns exchanged vows with LeRoy Lewis Loewen, Port Alberni.

Rev. C. Barner and Rev. G. Ashdown officiated at the candlelit ceremony.

Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mearns, 2923 Quadra Street. Mr. Mearns gave his daughter in marriage. Miss Janet Smith sang during signing of the register.

Pure silk brocade in floor-length formed the gown worn by the bride. It featured a basque bodice with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves.

Large bridal rose highlighted the back of the full hooped skirt that extended into a cathedral train. Floor-length veil of silk illusion misted with a tiara of lace, sparkling with aurora borealis. Bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses and white carnations. Only jewelry was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Emerald green velvet gown, styled on princess lines, were chosen by matron of honor Mrs. George Cooper and bridesmatron Mrs. Bernard Hawker. Bridesmatron Mrs.

Joseph Richard wore a similar gown in copper-toned velvet. All carried colonial bouquets of golden yellow roses and carnations and wore matching bows in their hair.

Petite flower-girl Leahlyn Kerieff had a full-skirted dress of yellow patterned nylon, posed over a copper-toned crinoline, and toning headbow. Golden yellow carnations were in the basket she carried.

Bernard Hawker was best man, and ushering guests were Peter Schroeder and R. Cooper. Red carnation boutonnières were in the lapels of their white dinner jackets.

T. Cooper proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the church hall. Flowers outlined an archway behind the bride and groom, and head table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, surrounded with roses. Pink candles and carnations completed the table decor.

For a honeymoon motoring trip to Winnipeg, the bride donned a flamingo-toned moiré and wool suit and matching coat, feathered hat and navy accessories. Corsage was of white roses.

Newlyweds will make their home at Port Alberni.

Tonight's Bride Honored

Many showers and parties have been held honoring Miss Marilyn Gibson, whose marriage to Lorne Hardwick takes place in St. Saviour's Anglican Church this evening.

Mrs. J. Macdonald, Mrs. M. Macdonald and Mrs. G. Pickard were co-hostesses at a ship and decorated with pink, blue and white roses.

Bride-elect and her fiancé were feted at a surprise shower given at Tsawwassen Camp by her mother's family, the Brandiths, with 58 relatives of the bride-to-be and the groom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Hardwick of Langley, B.C., attending. Corsages were presented to the guest of honor, to her mother, Mrs. R. Gibson, and the groom-elect's mother. Gifts were in a blue and white container. A delicious supper was served.

A linen shower was held by Mrs. T. Mitchell and her daughter, Mrs. G. Durissen, in the Lampson Street home of the former. Rosebuds and heather in a crystal vase centred the table that was covered with an ecru-tatted cloth. Corsages of American Beauty roses and pink satin roses were presented to the guest of honor and her mother, respectively. Guests included Mrs. D. Reed, Mrs. M. Soulesby, Mrs. G. Faye, Mrs. L. Lancaster, Mrs. D. Phelps, Mrs. R. Weldon, Mrs. J. Small, Mrs. W. Symes, Mrs. G. Redman, Mrs. S. Gibson, Mrs. J. Macdonald, Mrs. G. Hutchison, Mrs. W. Campbell and the Misses Avril Brett, Carol Small, M. Macdonald, C. Hutchison, Donna Daley, Mary Phelps and Tessie and Janie Gibson.

Mrs. E. Cartland and her daughter, Joanie, entertained at a shower in their Hobbs Road home. Pink carnations were presented to the bride-to-be and white, her mother. A floral arrangement, shaped like an umbrella, was suspended over the dining room table. There were 35 guests.

Co-hostesses at a bath-room shower in the Victoria Room at the T. Eaton store were Miss Donna Daley and Ginny Justice. Corsages of gladioli and rosebuds were presented. Table was centred with a large shower cake. There were 22 guests.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Exercise Arches to Avoid Fatigue, Pains in Calves, Hips, Thighs

Many folks have trouble with their feet. Often they have symptoms which they do not even realize are caused by weak arches. One of these symptoms is extreme fatigue, the kind which makes you feel tired all over. Also, pains in the calves, thighs, or even the hips may be due weak feet.

Let us remember that the arches of the feet bear the weight of the body. Naturally, the longer you are on your feet the greater strain you place on your arches. Therefore, if your job or interests keep you on your feet a lot, you would be wise to take preventative arch exercises to strengthen the muscles.

The same thing is true if you are pregnant, or if you are overweight. Exercises are a wise precaution. As a person grows older, these exercises are helpful, too, since the muscles are likely to become lax.

Nothing can make you as tired as an aching foot can. If your toes are crowded or the shoes cut your instep, you are miserable, and may even be cross because of it.

Look at the bottoms of your shoes. If they are worn off on the insides of the soles, you probably have weak ankles. Exercise can help this situation, too.

The following exercise is a simple one and will benefit the arches. Walk about the room, barefooted. Walk on the outside of your feet. Now clench your toes and walk on the inside of your feet. If you will practice this exercise regularly it will make the muscles stronger.

The habit of wearing high heels most of the time is very hard on the feet. Why not wear these just on dress occasions or when you will not be on your feet for any length of time.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Take Care of Your Feet," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for Leaflet No. 14. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Big Hats, Little Hats
... And More Hats!

By PENNY SAVER

If you're the gal who dreams of a snappy wardrobe of hats, one for every outfit, but your budget won't allow it—grin, but don't bear it. There is a simply marvelous solution for you—on-line shag jersey hoods, and hoods of beaver and velour.

The orlon hoods, at $3.50, will cover most hat forms, be they one or two-piece buckram, pillbox, or globe. And these forms sell from 69 cents to $1.29.

Colors? Anything that might suit your fancy. Dior red, shocking pink, beige, three shades of brown, mauve, black, white, purple, and, of course, winter white.

So-o! We have the forms and the hoods. Now, what to do? Simply pull the hood over the hat form, and nip, tuck, push, pull, shape, and drape, until you achieve the desired affect. Add a wee bit of adornment, and... Voila! Un chapeau!

You prefer beaver, $8.79, or velour, $5.79? Imported from Czechoslovakia, they also come in a complete line of colors, blues, greens, reds, browns, black, copper, and gold. These hoods should be blocked for best effect, but it is possible to create a most stunning hat without the aids of blocking or hat forms.

A complete line of imported trims is also available. Included are gorgeous leather pads from $1.10 to $1.69; lovely velvet roses, in all colors (for dresses as well as hats) only 69 cents, and vivid jeweled pins, 49 cents to $1.50.

Be wise, gentle reader, accessorize with a hat! Call Penny at EV 2-3131.

Diagonal Weave Material
Can't Be Cut to Form 'V'

Dear Mrs. Farmer,
"I have purchased diagonal weave wool and propose to use a pattern with a centre front seam. Will you please advise me whether or not I should make this by cutting the material to form a 'V' at the centre front?"

MRS. K. C.

Dear Mrs. K. C.:
If your fabric is actually woven with a diagonal weave the diagonal lines must all run in one direction. It is impossible to cut your garment to form a 'V' as you asked, unless you would use the wrong side of the fabric for one half of the dress.

Remember that when diagonal woven fabric is cut on the bias it forms straight horizontal lines, which make a very attractive contrasting binding. It is the self trim used in an unusual way that makes plaids and diagonals so attractive.

Your Sewing Glossary

Hand-picking: This is a decorative stitch used on plain fabrics and can be any desired distance from the edge. Use a single, waxed, thread of silk buttonhole twist. If you cannot get the buttonhole twist in the exact color you need.

use a double waxed mercerized thread.
The stitch is made with a tiny back-stitch, catching in the interfacing, but not going clear through the coat facing where the stitches would show. Don't pull the stitches too tight, and they should be about 1/4 inch apart. This stitch is also used when applying zippers by hand.

Newlyweds Living in Vancouver

After a honeymoon up Island, M.F. and Mrs. Terence Roy Spencer Melville are now making their home in Vancouver, where the groom is attending University of British Columbia and his wife is on Shaughnessy Hospital nursing staff.

Canon H. Jones, assisted by Canon F. C. Vaughan-Birch, officiated at their wedding in St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Sidney. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. McMullan of Derrylin, County Fermanagh, Northern Ireland, and Mrs. R. Melville, Sidney, and the late Rev. Roy Melville. The bride is the former Irene Harriet Elizabeth McMullan.

Given in marriage by the groom's uncle, George Spencer, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta that had silk applique at the round neckline and lily point sleeves of the basque bodice. Chapel-length veil was held by a rhinestone tiara. Bouquet was of yellow roses and rust-tinted chrysanthemums.

ing headdress. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. Wedding music was played by Mrs. D. Richardson.

Wallace Selby Melville, Kitchener, B.C., was best man. The ushers were Robert Minter, FO Maynard, Warden and Hans Rasmussen.

Canon Jones proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the Third Street home of the groom's mother. White chrysanthemums decorated the rooms and red and yellow roses were on the head table that was centred with a three-tier wedding cake.

In the receiving line with the bride couple were the groom's mother, his aunt, Mrs. George Spencer, and sister-in-law, Mrs. W. S. Melville.

S. A. Rick gave the flowers for the church and reception, church decorations being arranged by Mrs. G. R. Stuart. Leaving on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Melville donned a dark green wool dress, topped with a brown fur-trimmed coat, and brown and green accessories.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes at an anniversary.

Cake With One Lighted Candle Marks Year of Dedicated Effort

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A special ceremony took place in Government House on Thursday, that had in it all the warmth of a friendly accolade.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes were lunching alone in the big dining room.

When it came time for the sweet, the door to the kitchen swung open and staff members appeared with an iced cake topped with one lighted candle.

"It's an anniversary, sir," someone said.

REMEMBERS

Only then did the Lieutenant-Governor remember that it was a year this week since he came to Government House.

When he was sworn in, George Pearkes said: "My wife and I will do our best to play the part now assigned to us."

In the year that has gone it has been proven that he intends to carry out that promise to the fullest meaning of the words.

It's a 24-hour job as far as he is concerned.

This does not mean the Lieutenant-Governor has no time to relax. Far from it. There's an air of relaxed friendliness in Government House today that extends from the lower halls to the state drawing room.

MANSION A HOME

The Pearkes strive to maintain a family atmosphere that makes a home of the big mansion. Weekends when there are no formal visitors, the halls often echo to children's voices when son John, his wife and two small children come from Vancouver to visit.

Both the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes love animals and in recent weeks, a boxer named Baron has been added to the family circle.

Baron is His Honor's dog and when they are together, the quiet of the long hallways often resounds to the rush of the animal's feet and the deep voice of his master.

Family atmosphere is further carried out by Mrs. Pearkes, who drives her own small car—a Renault—on all but formal occasions.

And again, by the Lieutenant-Governor who, when he wants some exercise, gets into old clothes and works in the Government House rose garden.

Invitations have poured in on the Pearkes from the day they entered Government House. They have attended gatherings of all kinds; officiated at opening ceremonies; acted as patrons and given their approval to nearly every worthwhile effort that has taken place.

WITHOUT FANFARE

They have "dropped in" informally at some events, too. His Honor went out to the Saanich fair on Labor Day weekend, without fanfare and without ceremony, because he is a former resident of the Saanich peninsula and he is personally interested.

Soccer games, too, see His Honor seated in the stands, urging his favorite team on to victory.

TRAVELS MANY MILES

The Lieutenant-Governor has travelled over 10,000 miles in the 12 months he has represented the Queen—by car, ship, train and plane—to fulfill engagements in other parts of the province. Mrs. Pearkes has been with him on most occasions.

The Pearkes enjoy meeting people and having friends around them. When there is time, they like nothing better than to attend the private parties to which they are invited and to entertain in return.

They have not given cocktail parties or late-day receptions in Government House, but they have had many luncheon parties, dinners and afternoon receptions, in the

Mrs. Pearkes has brought the coffee party back into the Government House social picture, a gracious type of entertaining she learned when she was in Ottawa while her husband was federal minister of defence. In the year that has gone there have been many formal occasions at the big mansion on the hill when protocol has taken the place of friendly informality. Distinguished guests have included ambassadors and high commissioners of a number of countries and the president of Iceland.

The year also saw one of the most unusual and yet one of the most popular summer garden parties.

Afternoon Wedding in Centennial Church

French Guipure lace, encrusted with seed pearls and sequins, enhanced the basque bodice of exquisite gown of candlelight pure silk peau de soie worn by Maureen Gail Saville for her marriage to Kenneth Bruce Cox in Centennial United Church this afternoon.

Gown had the new intermezzo hemline and a dropped empire waistline that with its subtle effect at back, accentuated the full skirt. Sleeves were in bracelet length. Sequins and pearls sparkled on the dainty lace coronet that held a creamy silk illusion veil. Roses in coral and champagne tones were in the cascade bouquet.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Saville, 3177 Donald Street, and Mrs. R. L. Cox, 1428 Elford Street, and the late Mr. Cox. Mr. Saville gave his daughter in marriage.

Rev. S. J. Parsons officiated at the candlelit double-ring ceremony. Tall baskets of white and autumn-toned chrysanthemums decorated the church. Organist was Mrs. M. Wilmshurst. John Dunbar sang "The Lord's Prayer" during signing of the register.

A vase of sweetheart roses topped the three-tier wedding cake that centred head table at a reception in Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Rosebuds and tulle encircled the cake, which was flanked by tall silver candelabra. A Howard proposed the toast to the bride.

Austrian mauve silk wool suit in lace knit design was worn by the bride as her going-away ensemble. Suit was topped with a black wool coat that had large cuffs of black-fox fur. Accessories were black and her corsage, white roses.

After a honeymoon spent in the United States, the newlyweds will make their home at the Highlander Apartments.

Mauve brocade sheath gown with overlay skirts in shorter length was chosen by matron of honor, Mrs. Pat Semenoff. Flower and net headpiece was in tone and her spray bouquet of mauve carnations and coral chrysanthemums.

Similar gowns in pale green brocade with toning headpieces were worn by bridesmaids, the Misses Shirley Chatfield and Betty Colebrook. Coral carnations and white chrysanthemums were in their bouquets.

A. L. Cox was best man for his brother and ushering guests to their pews were Dr. D. R. Carlow and Dr. B. Banister.

High-Rise Building Rules Clarified by Council Move

City council Friday gave three readings to a zoning amendment aimed at clarifying regulations in the high rise apartment area alongside Beacon Hill Park, and set Oct. 26 for a public hearing.

Reds Seek Extradition Of Refugee

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia has demanded the extradition of an Estonian now living in the United States to face trial on war crimes charges, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

It said the note had been sent to the U.S. calling for the extradition of Karl Linna, a one-time concentration camp officer and later the camp's chief in Tartu on the Baltic coast of Estonia.

Tass did not say where Linna lived in the U.S.

Member Sues Union

VANCOUVER (CP)—Allan William Scott, a member of the International Union of Operating Engineers, is suing Local 115 and its president for damages for alleged wrongful termination of his employment as business agent for the local last June. Scott claims he was let out without notice or pay in lieu of notice.

The amendment would eliminate a technical defect in the issue of a building permit for a 12-storey apartment building on the site of the former Bickerton Court, council was told. Object to the building permit was made by lawyer E. A. Popham, who said the apartment block would be built too close to nearby buildings under existing regulations.

The amendment would restrict the special spacing provisions in the high-rise zones to buildings at least three stories high, which would eliminate the objection, council was told.

'SKY SHIELD' HEADQUARTERS

1,800 PLANES ON ALERT

Air Defences Tested In Far-Flung Exercise

By The Canadian Press

Canada and the United States today open the biggest peacetime test of North American air defences in a 12-hour mock raid by hundreds of bombers making 6,000 sorties against strategic bomber bases and key industrial centres in the two countries.

Simulating a surprise nuclear strike, the attackers, assisted by about a dozen British bombers, will sweep down from the north over Canadian skies and from the east and west coasts in attempts to penetrate radar screens and interceptor defences.

On the alert will be about 1,800 interceptor planes, including nine Canadian jet squadrons.

(One of these, 409 Squadron, is based at Comox on Vancouver Island. A spokesman said today the base was in a position to take its part in "any commitments" set out in the exercise. The squadron flies CF-100 aircraft.)

Also alerted are about 250 American missile bases involving, all told, about 250,000 army, navy and air force personnel.

The exercise, called Operation Sky Shield II, has gained significance in the light of the tense Berlin situation.

Its importance also is increased by statements of U.S. air experts that Russia is flying at least one type of new supersonic bomber and one new long-range interceptor that may be superior to their U.S. counterparts. These new Soviet aircraft, flying at more than twice the speed of sound, were unveiled at the Moscow Air Show in July.

Attempt to Sneak by Northern Radar

Not a shot is to be fired in the 12-hour exercise, which opened at 9 a.m. PST. The American "attacking" B-47 and B-52 bombers took off early in the day from their regular bases and then attempted to manoeuvre on the outskirts of the northern radar networks, plotting sneak attacks.

Once the attackers were about to be detected by radar screens of such installations as the DEW, Mid-Canada and Pinetree lines, reports were to be flashed automatically to the North American Air Defence Command headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo. Defence and flight orders will flow out to interceptor and Hercules and Nike-Ajax missile bases almost as quickly as warnings are flashed in.

Later, through photographs and notes taken by attackers and defenders, NORAD will determine how much theoretical damage was done to the aggressors and to the two countries.

During 12 hours all commercial Canadian U.S. air traffic is being grounded to prevent accidents. Aggressor bombers in the exercise will be armed with nuclear carrying warheads. No weapons or missiles are to be fired. The defenders will have the powerful U.S. strategic bomber force, a mixture of subsonic and supersonic fighters and interceptors, along with Nike-Hercules and Nike-Ajax missile bases around bomber and industrial centres.

RWAGASORE
... Urundi leader

African Premier Assassinated

USUMBURA, Ruanda-Urundi (Reuters) — Louis Rwagasore, prime minister of the African kingdom of Urundi, was assassinated by an unidentified gunman here Friday night.

The prime minister was dining with cabinet ministers at a lakeside restaurant when he was struck in the chest by a rifle bullet fired from some nearby bushes.

Urundi and its neighboring territory Ruanda are bordered by Kivu province of the former Belgian Congo and are both Belgian trusteeships due to become independent next year.

Rwagasore, 30, was the leader of the Union and Progress National Party that won a sweeping victory in the first Urundi elections last month.

As eldest son of the Urundi monarch, the Mwami Mambusta, Rwagasore was crown prince, but he was not heir apparent.

Urundi has been calm for some time, despite sporadic clashes between rival tribes in neighboring Ruanda.

The Mwami (king) has been ruling since 1915 and the monarchy is strongly entrenched in Urundi.

The king of Ruanda is living in exile and the electorate there recently voted overwhelmingly against his return.

Gaglardi Remarks 'Made in Private'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Gaglardi has denied making a public statement that he is considering leaving politics because police are hounding him.

The radio station that carried a broadcast purporting to be a tape-recorded telephone interview with the minister said today that Mr. Gaglardi made the statement privately.

Manager Bill Hughes of New Westminster radio station CKNW said today the reporter who broadcast the tape has been dismissed for breaking a confidence. He said the conversation with the minister was a private one and should not have been broadcast.

The highways minister, vacationing in Tokyo, was asked about the report in a long-distance telephone call. He told the Vancouver Province:

"I never made a public statement to radio station CKNW concerning resigning from the provincial government. A statement of that kind would be made to only one man—the premier."

The newspaper says Mr. Gaglardi refused to amplify this statement and would not discuss what he meant by the word "public."

Mr. Gaglardi, facing a careless driving charge in Kamloops, his sixth traffic offence in five years, was quoted in the broadcast as saying he was considering leaving politics because the RCMP "just won't let me alone." He was quoted as saying his decision depended on what happened in the Kamloops traffic case.

The radio station said the

Cease-Fire Pact Signed With UN

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters) — A cease-fire agreement between the United Nations and Katanga was signed here Friday night, it was announced today.

The agreement was described as an extension of the provisional pact signed last month.

The effect of the agreement was to bring the two sides back to the political and military positions they occupied before last month's clash over UN efforts to remove white mercenaries from the Katanga armed forces.

The agreement, reached after 23 days of hard bargaining by President Moise Tshombe of Katanga and Mahmoud Khari of Tunisia, chief of the UN's civil operations in the Congo, takes effect immediately and needs only approval by the UN secretariat in New York.

After the signing of the agreement, Tshombe emerged smiling onto the balcony of the presidential palace, but Khari looked grim after the final, day-long bargaining session.

The agreement clearly states that the UN recognizes the right of Katanga to defend itself against outside attack, which was taken to mean any attempt by the Congo's central government in Leopoldville to bring Katanga under its control.

UN TROOPS REMAIN

However, Tshombe failed to press home his much-stated demands that the UN troops who have been in the secessionist province for 15 months be withdrawn.

Khari is expected to go to Leopoldville soon, presumably to make further contacts in a bid to bring about a reconciliation between Katanga and the central government.

The central government said in Leopoldville Friday night that it would not feel bound by the Katanga cease-fire agreement.

Under the cease-fire agreement all prisoners will be returned, without their arms or munitions.

The 190 Irish UN prisoners who were reported to have been transferred to Kolwezi from Jadotville—where they had been held since their capture more than three weeks ago—will probably be brought here.

A mixed military commission will be set up to supervise the terms of the agreement.

Points in Elisabethville occupied by the United Nations will be neutralized and no armed forces will be allowed into the area.

Cold War To Last A Century

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan today described Russia as the world's "greatest imperialist country" and predicted the cold war would last a generation and perhaps longer.

Macmillan told the windup session of the annual Conservative party conference that peaceful coexistence between East and West could come only if Communist nations recover a "moral basis" for their existence.

Macmillan said Russia was "the greatest imperialist country in the world and is using all the old arts and ambitions of Czarist Russia.... All the same I still hope that the Russians may, in their own interests, be willing to accept something in the nature of a detente.... Berlin may provide the first real test."

Gypsy State Proposed

PARIS (Reuters) — Gypsy "King" Valda Voivod III Friday announced plans to found a Gypsy state called Romanestan for his 9,000,000 subjects on virgin territory allotted by the United Nations.

He told a press conference here that a draft international statute for the Gypsies will be submitted to the UN asking for juridical and social protection for Gypsies throughout the world and provision of land for them to establish Romanestan.

He proposed an island in the Atlantic or Pacific as a site for a Gypsy state and said it would be modelled on Israel to show that the Gypsies were capable of developing virgin or barren soil.

The subject will be discussed at a world Gypsy congress due to be held in Paris next month.

Manufacturing Weekly Wages Show Decline

OTTAWA (CP)—Average weekly wages in Canadian manufacturing dipped by $1.03 between June and July, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has reported.

The average wage for July was $73.99, as against $75.02 a month earlier. Hourly earnings averaged $1.82, down from $1.83, and the work-week average slipped to 46.0 hours from 47.

Weekly wages in durable goods manufacturing dropped to $81.03 from $82.04—partly due to model changes in the auto industry and layoffs in non-ferrous smelting and refining firms.

In non-durable manufacturing average weekly wages fell to $67.78 from $68.58. In this case, DBS said, wage-rate increases in pulp and paper were offset by more lower-paid workers in canning and preserving.

FUN, FROLIC—AND A WARNING FINGER

Deadly serious purpose of Fire Prevention Week was hidden behind facade of fun and frolic at Belmont Park naval fire station this morning. Last day of annual "week" was marked by parade of decorated bikes, trikes and doll buggies—but most of all by open house at station, where scores of youngsters swarmed over fire equipment, inhaled free pop and sandwiches, and, without knowing it, absorbed the lesson that fires just don't start themselves—they need "help" of human carelessness.

Liberals Overwhelm Groos In Support of Tax Cuts

Former Esquimalt-Saanich by-election candidate David Groos shocked Liberal convention delegates Friday when he rebelled against policy of cutting income tax.

Mr. Groos, who almost pulled a stunning upset when he came within 500 votes of winning the federal seat last May, lost again Friday.

The convention overwhelmed his protest and approved an economic policy which included temporary tax cuts on personal income, lowering of interest rates and tariff barriers plus a brake on foreign investment in Canada.

Mr. Groos startled delegates when he said the section on income tax cuts "smacks of buying votes and irresponsibility."

Peggy Gibbs, widow of former Oak Bay MLA P. A.

DAVID GROOS ... fights policy

Gibbs, defended the tax-cut policy.

"Tax reductions in hard times and increases in good times makes good sense," she said.

It meant that money was spread evenly among all taxpayers when they most needed it.

The section on curbing foreign capital was toned down. Originally it was aimed to "reduce the inflow of American capital." This was amended to "offset the flow of foreign capital," after delegates maintained that U.S. investment was very important to Canada. Other trade resolutions calling for a national "sales force" to promote Canadian goods abroad and for an Atlantic Community Market were also approved.

Municipalities 'Going Broke' On Education

A royal commission on education financing and a plea for all-Canadian textbooks were approved by B.C. Liberals at their Empress Hotel convention Friday.

Victoria and Vancouver delegates agreed that unless there is a new approach to school finance municipalities "are going broke."

The policy adopted was that there is no longer "any rational basis" for financing education through property and improvement taxes. The system is "inequitable, inadequate, inefficient and antiquated," said a resolution approved by delegates.

A Liberal government would set up a royal commission to work out a new formula which would still maintain local school board autonomy.

The textbook issue sparked an unexpected flurry as one delegate charged that works written, edited and published only by Canadians would lead to "narrow-mindedness, provincialism and censorship."

Ralph Brown of Point Grey said textbooks should be written "by experts rather than Canadians," even if that meant American experts.

A bid to delete a resolution clause which said textbooks should be written by Canadians was defeated.

The majority of delegates felt that school books, like the CBC, should reflect "a Canadian voice." The resolution singled out social studies texts as a cause of particular concern.

$1,500 Damage In Car Rampage

Four Driving Charges AGAINST LAW Admitted by Sailor

A rampage by a young driver resulted in over $1,500 damage to four cars at midnight Friday.

In city police court today Reggie Clark Douglas, HMCS St. Laurent, pleaded guilty to two charges of careless driving and two of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Magistrate William Ostler, referring to the incident as a "disgraceful state of affairs," imposed fines of $40 and $50, and jail terms of 10 and 14 days respectively, all to run consecutively.

Also in court was a shipmate of Douglas', Robert W. Anderson, who pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving after being involved with Douglas in one of the accidents.

Mr. Ostler also suspended both men's licences and prohibited them from driving anywhere in Canada for two years.

"It is quite obvious you are both unsuitable for driving," he said.

HIT PARKED CAR

Police said the Douglas car had been pushed by Anderson in another auto for more than a mile and was on Collision approaching the "T" junction with Trutch at 11:55 p.m. when Douglas failed to make the turn and crashed into a parked car owned by William Innis, 601 Trutch.

Anderson told police he had been doing "about 25 to 30" and the force of the impact drove Innis' car onto the curb, forcing tires off the wheels in the process.

DROVE OFF

By this time Douglas had managed to start his engine, back away from the wreck and drive down Trutch.

Three minutes later the Douglas car ran a red light at Fairfield and Cook and collided with a car driven by Carl O. Gustafson, 1221 Johnson.

TOWED AWAY

Douglas' car suffered only $200 damage but all of the other three were towed away by wreckers.

Damage to the Innis vehicle was estimated at $600, to the Gustafson car about $350 and $200 to the Anderson auto.

Youths Make Leap From Stolen Car In Oak Bay

Oak Bay police are seeking two youths who leaped from a stolen car early today while it was still moving.

Police said a car owned by D'Arcy Bridgman was taken from outside 1021 Craigdarroch some time before 1:55 a.m. and driven into Oak Bay. Oliver the youths apparently spotted a prowler car and jumped from the vehicle. The car went out of control and sideswiped a telephone pole before crashing into a parked car owned by E. J. Lewis, 1446 Oliver.

Total damage to both cars was estimated at $800.

Fresh Breeze Is Blowing!

By FRANK RUTTER

Times Legislature Reporter.

It's amazing that three men had the urge to pour so much into a personal quest for a political "joe job" that they turned the Liberal convention into a free-wheeling Yankee presidential-style rally.

Presidency of any political party is usually strictly a backroom job. Liberals in the past had to scratch for a person to take it on.

Yet this weekend Hugh Martin, Bill Gilmour and Jack Taggart swooped on the Empress, each determined to make a big thing out of being president.

In their anxiety to please they even set up a lobby-long bar outside the Crystal Ballroom Friday night, and the behind-scenes vote-hunting was something terrific.

Mr. Taggart, most restrained of the trio, leans more to the old theory that presidents should be neither seen nor heard—publicly.

But Mr. Martin has offered $100,000 to help rebuild the party and he certainly pulled out all the stops.

Some Liberals feel that perhaps it is a good thing to change from the smoke-filled room to the public podium. A hard-bitten president could be just what the party needs to regain power in B.C., they say.

Even if the convention did nothing else, by the time the pretty girls, the free apples, the buttons, stickers and handouts were cleared away, it had won more publicity than its organizers dreamed of.

Critics of the new vinyl tiles in the Buildings corridors may have the last laugh.

Works Minister W. N. Chant says the tiles rise when subjected to heat.

Watch out for historian James R. Nesbitt poking around the steam radiators this winter for some evidence.

People who want to see Premier Bennett will now get "split-T" treatment.

His suite at the Buildings has been enlarged to include a fourth room.

First you enter a receptionist's office (she's new); then you're passed through a secretaries' office, lateralled across an ante-room, and finally enter the end-zone.

Mr. Bennett will soon announce his new personal aide, to replace executive assistant Dan Ekman, who quit recently.

Still spry, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas remain in remarkable health. Mrs. Douglas has never been in a hospital a night of her life. She bore all seven children at home.

And the secret to a long and happy marriage?

Mr. Douglas says: "If your wife lets you think you're the boss, and you let gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas congratulate them when everything will work out just fine."

They plan to spend their declining years in the city of flowers and take it easy and not worry.

They have spent the last 20 years in the Okanagan Valley, and worked their farm up until two months ago. A farmer all his life, Fred Douglas has never owned a motor car.

The Douglas' had a family of seven children, four still surviving. Their eldest son is 71 and works his own farm in Alberta.

One of their daughters, Mrs. R. Dreger, has come to Victoria from Phoenix, Arizona, and is giving her parents a little party at her hotel. The family relatives in Victoria will then go out to dinner at the Princess Mary to celebrate the anniversary.

Among the messages and gifts received by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas congratulating them on their long and happy marriage were a letter and a bouquet of flowers from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, VC.

River Closed After Tanker Holed

QUEBEC (CP)—Harbor authorities partially lifted a state of emergency today to allow some 25 waiting vessels to pass through the port of Quebec, endangered by oil and benzene from a grounded tanker.

The vessels were anchored at both ends of a 35-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence, closed to navigation after the British tanker Vibex ran aground on a rocky point of land near the Quebec bridge and began spilling the fuel into the river.

LEADERSHIP RACE

Hot Campaign Reaches Peak

The hot contest for presidency of B.C. Liberal Party went right down to the wire today as a two-man battle.

Voting was still under way at press time after the first ballot at noon failed to decide a winner.

No totals were announced, but Vancouver lawyer Jack Taggart was eliminated as low man.

This left it a straight two-way fight between Bill Gilmour, a Penticton lawyer, and Hugh Martin, president of the Big Vancouver firm Marwell Construction.

Several more ballots were expected, as a 51 per cent majority is required to secure the office.

By FRANK RUTTER

The campaign for Liberal Party presidency reached a climax here today with a no-holds-barred, fired-up barrage of speeches.

The whole party convention at the Empress Hotel has been "made" by the contest between Vancouver contractor Hugh Martin, Penticton lawyer Bill Gilmour and Jack Taggart, another lawyer from Vancouver.

General business paled beside the free apples, roses, banners, breakfasts and hospital ity served up by the candidates.

It was not expected that a clear majority would emerge in the first ballot, being held at press time, and a second one would be taken later this afternoon.

Result of the first ballot was to be disclosed at 2 p.m., and delegates meanwhile went to lunch and met with national Liberal leader L. B. Pearson.

'MA' MURRAY HIT

Hit of the pre-vote nomination speakers this morning was Margaret "Ma" Murray, 73-year-old, newspaperwoman from Lillooet, who pulled out all the stops in a grandstand style for Mr. Martin. She made an impassioned plea for the Liberal Party to re-awaken and save its national identity.

"Hugh Martin is a builder and God knows if ever the Liberal Party in B.C. needs building it needs it now," she told cheering delegates.

NO PARTY

She said there had been in effect no Liberal Party for seven years since collapse of the Coalition government.

The first thing a new party president should do is "have

Cold War To Last A Century

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan today described Russia as the world's "greatest imperialist country" and predicted the cold war would last a generation and perhaps longer.

Macmillan told the windup session of the annual Conservative party conference that peaceful coexistence between East and West could come only if Communist nations recover a "moral basis" for their existence.

Macmillan said Russia was "the greatest imperialist country in the world and is using all the old arts and ambitions of Czarist Russia. . . . All the same I still hope that the Russians may, in their own interests, be willing to accept something in the nature of a detente. . . . Berlin may provide the first real test."

African Premier Assassinated

USUMBURA, Ruanda-Urundi (Reuters)—Louis Rwagasore, prime minister of the African kingdom of Urundi, was assassinated by an unidentified gunman here Friday night.

The prime minister was dining with cabinet ministers at a lakeside restaurant when he was struck in the chest by a rifle bullet fired from some nearby bushes.

Urundi and its neighboring territory Ruanda are bordered by Kivu province of the former Belgian Congo and are both Belgian trusteeships due to become independent next year.

Rwagasore, 30, was the leader of the Union and Progress National Party that won a sweeping victory in the first Urundi elections last month.

As eldest son of the Urundi monarch, the Mwami Mambusta, Rwagasore was crown prince, but he was not heir-apparent.

Urundi has been calm for some time, despite sporadic clashes between rival tribes in neighboring Ruanda.

The mwami (king) has been ruling since 1915 and the monarchy is strongly entrenched in Urundi.

The king of Ruanda is living in exile and the electorate there recently voted overwhelmingly against his return.

Ruanda and Urundi, with a joint population of 4,500,000, comprise three chief tribes—the giant, seven-foot-tall Watutsi warriors, the traditional rulers; Batwa pygmies who are Watutsi followers; and Bahutus, members of the Bantu tribe.

New Clash in Oran

ORAN, Algeria (UPI)—Moslems and Europeans clashed for the second straight day today in the congested port area of Oran. At least two Europeans were reported wounded after shots were fired by Moslems.

Two Die in Fire

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Firemen poked through the still-warm embers of a second-class hotel today with two—possibly more—men believed dead, five firemen injured and damages running nearly $250,000.

Some party bald statements comin' out o' th' Whig convention.

Garden Value of Plants Not Reflected in Price

By JACK BEASTALL

The selling price of a plant is determined by the ease with which it can be propagated and the length of time needed for it to reach a saleable size.

A plant easy to produce and reaching a saleable size in a short period will be lower in price than one that is more difficult, or slower growing.

However, every plant has a value that is quite distinct from its selling price, and it is not always the highest-priced plants that give the greatest value for the dollars invested.

For example, two plants may each have a selling price of one dollar.

One may be of garden interest for a period of four to six weeks which may be its flowering period, while the other may have spring interest in its young growths, summer interest in its flowers, fall interest in the color of its foliage, and winter interest in its buds and bark.

The second plant, being of interest for 52 weeks, has almost nine times the garden value of the first plant, although the initial cost was the same.

Another example is two plants of the same price, one of which remains much the same year after year or tends to deteriorate unless given attention, and the other which increases in size and beauty with each successive season.

In 10 years the garden value of the first may be the same or less, whereas the second would have increased its garden value possibly tenfold.

PRICE SET, NABARD

Occasionally one meets a gardener whose memory retains the purchase price of every plant in the garden. The price is used as a standard by which the value of the plant is judged, and is quoted to the visitor for the impression it will create.

Quite often it takes but little knowledge of plant material to realize that far greater garden value could have been obtained with a considerably smaller outlay of cash.

I believe most nurserymen will agree with me when I state there have been times when they have sold a quantity of expensive plants to a customer without experiencing satisfaction in the deal because of the feeling that greater garden value was possible for the same expenditure.

The nurseryman, however, great his knowledge and experience, cannot force a customer to invest his plant dollars wisely. He can only make suggestions, and too often these suggestions are construed as an effort to unload surplus stock.

INVESTMENT

The man who grows the plants, knows the plants, and he is very sensitive to their garden value. His advice when investing in plants should be as acceptable as that of a stockbroker when investing in stocks and bonds.

Another factor entering into garden value is the amount of work that will be required to maintain a plant in a presentable condition. Pruning, spraying, removal of spent blossoms, frequent lifting and digging and replanting are all expenditures or added costs.

Plants requiring considerable attention along these lines are of less garden value than those which more or less take care of themselves. Often it takes but another variety of the same plant to increase the garden value.

In a small garden, fast growing plant material has a lower garden value than slow growing material, because a shorter period will elapse before its overpowering presence make removal compulsory.

YEARS WASTED

While it takes but a short time to cut down the offending tree or shrub, the removal of the roots could involve an outlay of cash in addition to the disruption of a large area of the garden.

The sad part about having to remove unsuitable material is the number of years of growth that have been wasted, years that could have made a slower growing plant into a flower of the garden.

A fast growing plant, purchased for $150 and removed after 10 years, has cost 15 cents a year. The initial cost of a slower growing plant may be three times as much, or $450, but in 45 years it could be the main garden attraction at a cost of only 10 cents a year and no extra expenditure needed for a replacement.

It is not to be expected that every gardener who buys a plant will have an extensive knowledge of plant material and be competent to judge garden value.

The purchase of a plant should always be looked upon as an investment rather than an expense, and seeking the advice of a plant grower results in a wise investment that will pay increasing dividends as the years pass.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

A sowing of sweet peas outdoors in a sunny, sheltered, well-drained spot will produce cut flowers by early May if winter is not severe.

Soil is becoming moist enough for nurseries to be able to dig from the open fields. Conifers and broadleaf evergreen shrubs will now be available. Leaf-losing trees, roses and other large shrubs must wait for digging until leaves fall.

Plants available in cans or other containers may of course be planted any time.

Most gardeners will be willing to sacrifice the dahlia blossoms now so that tubers can be dug and stored before the ground gets too wet. Store in cool, dry place free of frost.

Prepare now for planting of roses next month. Use well rotted compost or old manure, and bonemeal.

Look for cuttings of perennials, phlox, and root them over winter in sandy soil in a cold frame.

Compost all fallen leaves, stems, old plants, all garden refuse. Sprinkling of soil on each layer aids decomposition, and heap should be turned during winter.

Remove yellow leaves from all brassicas (the cabbage family) and lower leaves from brussels sprouts to aid in development of the "buttons".

Real Estate Salesmen Imprisoned

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two former real estate salesmen were sent to jail Friday for conspiring to defraud a mortgage company of $15,000.

Magistrate Oscar Orr sentenced William W. Cooper of White Rock, to two years less one day and Clifford Tapley, 60, of Vancouver, to 18 months.

Cooper, head of a White Rock securities firm, is already serving an 18-month sentence on fraud charges.

Police said a Vancouver mortgage company was defrauded in a deal in which a clear title property changed owners through a forged transfer of deed. They said a fraudulent mortgage was then arranged on the property.

Mayor to Ask Study Of James Bay Patrol

Mayor Percy Scurrell, Friday, told aldermen he would ask police commission to study and report on a house patrol organization in James Bay.

The undertaking followed complaints by Ald. Michael Griffin that a number of James Bay homeowners in a four-block area had signed $25 annual contracts for the service.

He said private companies that provide night patrols of property should be bonded as private detectives now are.

Ald. Griffin asked that the finance committee look into the matter to see if a bonding recommendation should be made to the provincial government.

GETTING SETTLED
A partner in the new firm, president Earl Lehna, 1248 Fort, explained later: "We're still trying to get settled and are in the process of having proper identification cards, including photographs, prepared for our men."

The other partner is Argand Guyon, of the same address, which is also patrol headquarters.
